CHEAPER DOLLAR.

Officials believe that the effect of fixing the price at a higher rate will be calculated to free the American dollar from European influence and will result in the cheapening of the dollar as compared with sterling or francs;

MRS. LOCKHART-SMITH PASSES AWAY

We have to record with regret the death, which occurred at the French Hospital this morning, of Mrs. Alice Janet Lockhart-Smith, the wife of Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, who only a few days ago was appointed to act as Official Receiver.

Mrs. Lockhart-Smith had been ill for some time, but news of her death will come as a shock to a wide circle of friends. She had been in the Colony for only a little more than a year, and was married about two years ago.

There is an infant daughter of the marriage.

PRIME MINISTER MAKES APPEAL TO GERMANY

URGES RETURN TO THE FOLD

STILL HOPING FOR AGREEMENT ON DISARMAMENT

NO BLUSH OR APOLOGY

LONDON, OCT. 23.
NO ONE IS ASKING GERMANY TO FORFEIT EITHER HER HONOUR OR HER SELF-RESPECT. DECLARED MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD, SPEAKING AT CRAWLEY, SUSSEX, TO-NIGHT, WHEN MAKING AN APPEAL FOR UNDERSTANDING.

He emphasised that disarmament efforts must continue. The British Government, he said, is not going to give up attempts to secure an agreed scheme for the reduction and limitation of armaments.

The Prime Minister, touching lightly on the suggestion by Baron von Neurath that there had been misrepresentation of Germany's position, declared that Britain could look Germany in the face without any blush or apology.

NEIGHBOURLINESS.

The nations of the world, he went on, must develop the spirit of neighbourliness.

There could be no settlement in Europe until every nation can sit around the same table on terms of equality.

Germany, in contribution to that end, must make it possible for other nations to lie alongside her without fear roused in their hearts and without distrust reflected in their arms.

NO RUNNING AWAY.

Britain, he added, will adopt the measures she considers best fitted to get results and "certainly one of those methods is not to run away ourselves."

The Premier denied that Germany's action in leaving the rest of the world to face its difficulties alone was the way to bring peace and to give confidence to Europe.

He concluded by expressing the hope that Germany would seize the first opportunity to show that she is pursuing peace and is anxious to return to cooperation with other nations that will not ask her to forfeit either her honour or her self-respect. — Reuter.

COUNTER-PROPOSALS.

India, it is reported, proposes three hundred million yards of cloth against thirteen hundred thousand bales of cotton.

On her part, Japan suggests that India should take last year's figure of Japanese piece-goods imports into India, namely, 578,000,000 yards.

As regards other industries, India has offered to place Japan on an equal footing with other countries by the adoption of a specific duty which however would be increased in the case of further depreciation of the yen. — Reuter.

SOVIET CENSUS

IN GREAT FAR-NORTH IN 1934-35

Khabarovsk. With the ultimate object of transforming the enormous unexplored territory of Russia's "Great Far-North" into a modern socialist community, a census will be taken in 1934-35.

It will be one of the most difficult censuses ever made. The population of the Far-North is thought to be about 1,800,000.

But they belong to about 25 different nationalities, each having its own language, culture, life habits and social structure.

In spite of extensive work by Soviet explorers, the Far-North is far from being sufficiently explored and studied. In many cases the natural resources, the inhabitants' needs and their occupations still remain unknown.

In some parts, however, civilisation has made its mark. Nomad tribes are beginning to settle down; schools and hospitals are a new feature in these distant areas. Guns of the latest make, factory-made fishing tackle, motor boats and modern farming implements are becoming regular features of local life.

The Soviet's ambition is to modernise the whole of this gigantic tract of lands, thus the census will not only be demographic but also economic. — Reuter.

CORRESPONDENCE

HOW HIGH CAN A HOSE STREAM?

(To the Editor,
Hongkong Telegraph.)

Sir.—A Canton English daily newspaper yesterday carried a description of a test made to a fire engine of Chinese construction, mounted on a "Morris" chassis. The stream of water from the hose reached a height of thirty feet, which was considered satisfactory and equal, if not superior, to any fire engine now in use here. (The Canton fire brigade possesses several fire engines of foreign manufacture).

Personally, my garden sprayer could better this achievement, but perhaps some of your readers could tell us exactly how high a modern fire engine can shoot water!

Yours,

Canton, October 21.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

If you're planning to try one of the new autumn coiffures, you'll probably need a permanent wave.

These new styles of hair dress are softly waved affairs and many of them have rows and rows of little curls at the back of the neck. Naturally, rows of curls are easier to retain if you have a permanent.

Shop around a bit before you decide on the place to get your wave. There is no economy in getting a bargain-permanent. The best is none too good for your hair. Remember that the operator who does the winding is more important than the kind of wave. If the winding is done properly and your hair tested before anything is done, you won't have split ends and falling hair.

The test curl is all important. Only by making a test of one lock of hair before anything else is done, does the operator know what strength lotion to use, and how much heat to apply.

If you dislike sitting under a heavy, hot machine, by all means investigate the new machine-less permanents before you make your appointment. They take much less time, aren't painful at all and there is no danger of getting burned since no heat is applied. The action takes place in the pads which are treated with various chemicals. The pads get hot the minute they are put around the hair and then start to cool in less than five minutes.

In spite of all their seemingly simple good points, have no fear that they won't keep your hair waved as long as the other kinds. They, too, are guaranteed for six months.

Locks that click with men hold a key to success in love.

White Plaid Organdie Adds Smart Touch

Hollywood.—It is the little things that make Hollywood costumes so interesting.

For instance, with a simple navy blue crepe dress, Gloria Stuart wears a pair of blue and white plaid organdie gauntlets, a wide bow tie of same organdie stuck through slits in the neck of her dress and a bit of the organdie making a decorative cuff around a little blue straw fez.

Dorothy Lee wore a green lace evening gown with pleats at the sides running clear up the skirt to the shoulders and green satin slippers with flesh-coloured ties to match her long suede gloves.

Betty Furness wore a white wrap-around crepe dress that fastened at the sides with bright red buttons and then had a fringed sash of red, white and blue. Her hat, too, was red, white and blue.

Dolores Del Rio wore a black and white suit, bathing suit in her own pool. The suit comprised of a kerchief top and white shorts laced up the sides with black and with black graduated stripes around the bottom.

Jean Parker wore a black satin dress with white ruching high about neck, in good, old pre-war manner, and three-quarter sleeves. Also a tiny black satin hat, looking very Parisienne.

People get tired of hearing

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

SYNOPSIS.

Leonard Sefton, visiting Graverley, and his wife, Helen, receive guests, among them the Marconi radio. The story of the missing man's daughter, Jessie Ryan, intrigues them and they decide to visit the Marconi man before he leaves. They make arrangements to have visited the man, and to have spoken to a servant named Louise, in London, just at the foot of the cliff. When assistance is brought, however, they find no trace of the man. The story and finding of the man is confirmed by tracks leading from the hotel. Little detail having been given. Later, on playing a tennis match, Leonard decides to visit the man again, and to speak to him of the hotel guests, in case of encountering him. When on board they are served by a strange girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

"Down among the Shadows."

For a few seconds Leonard Sefton made no response. His eyes were raised, and he was staring up at the grim metal vault beneath which they hung. Miss Haines started up, also, and then slowly lowered her eyes till they rested on her companion.

"What are you going to do?" she asked, in a low voice. "You don't think it was the gull—I can see you don't."

"I'm not sure, Miss Haines," he answered, slowly. "I did think it was, at first. But—suppose it wasn't?"

"Yes! Suppose it wasn't?"

"Well, we can't quite leave it like this, can we?" he said. "So I'm going to climb on board. Do you mind hanging on to your chain for another ten minutes?"

"I won't start back without you, if that's what you mean," responded the girl. "Go ahead, and act as if I wasn't here."

"Thanks," he said, although he knew that this was not possible.

At the same, Miss Haines's sensible attitude relieved him somewhat, for it allowed him a little latitude.

He gripped the chain firmly and gave it a sudden tug, to test it.

It held. Then he began to heave himself up, while the girl, athletic herself, watched him with admiration. Three heaves, and he had raised himself to a position from which he could clutch a broken rail. The rest was easy.

Dead ships are gruesome at the best of times, and this was not the best of times. After clambering to his feet, Leonard stared about him with a strange, compelling sensation of "depression." He could not recall ever having seen a more dreary, more ghostly sight. The ship, its funnels broken, its docks torn and scarred, its very angle an insult to human law and order, was naked of all that one could possibly desire. It abounded in vacant spaces, meaningless flooring, purposeless ways, and bridges that led to nowhere. It resembled a splintered bone from which every scrap of meat had been picked and every draught of nourishing juice extracted.

In one deep hole water lay, dark and green, unnaturally still; presided over by some evil god of immobility that crouched here secretly amid the gracious movement of the sea. An iron railing, wrenched from some other part of the ship, poked impudently down a companion-way, like a sword in an ill-fitting scabbard. There were boards which no one trod, port-holes through which no one looked.

Leonard Sefton had a stout heart, but he could not repress a shudder at this spectacle of desolation.

"God! It must have been a storm!" he muttered.

And yet, even while he thought of the storm and tried to visualise its nocturnal fury, an odd sense puzzled him. Did this storm that had arisen in a night explain all he saw?

But he did not waste valuable moments in fruitless conjecture.

After his first brief, swift survey, he climbed towards the cabin quarters, and listened. He listened for a sound that was like the cry of a gull. He heard no sounds however, save the lapping of the water against the ship's sides and the breaking of the waves among the shallows.

Yes, there was another sound. Soft footsteps in his rear. He turned round quickly, and found himself staring into the eyes of Beryl Haines.

"Sorry," she remarked. "Simply couldn't help it."

"You shouldn't have come," he reproved.

"Of course, I shouldn't," she agreed, "but don't lecture me. I don't think you should have opened that little box that let out all the world's wickedness—but who did open it, so there you are. Discovered anything?"

He shook his head, and turned again towards the black aperture down which he had been peering when she had interrupted him. All was quiet below.

"Beautiful place, this," commented the girl.

"And we've got the sun on it," she answered.

"Yes, I imagine it in that storm!"

"Or to-night, when the sun's gone down."

"Whom, Mr. Sefton," she pleaded. "I won't dare look at this wreck from my window when I go to bed, if you talk like that."

"You won't be able to see this wreck from your window when you go to bed," he responded. "There won't be any moon to see it by."

"So there won't. Good thing! Well—that's the next step?"

"I was going down, to have a look round."

"All right."

"I'm not sure that it is all right. You might follow me."

"Why shouldn't I follow you?"

"I suppose that means you're going to?"

"It does."

"Very well. But I make one stipulation, Miss Haines. From the moment we begin to descend into this nasty hole, you're under orders. Will you promise that?"

"Yes, captain. If there's any trouble you can give me my cue, if you like."

As they descended out of the sunlight, a sudden coldness assailed them, and they became conscious of the inadequacy of their apparel for protracted investigations of this kind. Despite herself, Beryl shivered a little, and wondered at her temerity. But two can cross a bull-field where one would stay by the stile.

The silence now grew heavy and close. All they could hear were their own movements, soft and stealthy. Once Beryl thought she heard a clock ticking, but recognised the sound immediately afterwards, with a tinge of shame, as her own heart. She hoped her companion did not hear it, also.

"Where are you?" she asked, suddenly.

"Here," replied Leonard's voice through the darkness. "Put out your hand."

She obeyed, and her fingers touched his. The contact was immeasurably comforting.

"Walk carefully," he next commanded. "I nearly tripped. There's been a pretty big smash just here. I wish I had a flashlight."

"Yes, they ought to make bathing-costumes with pockets," she replied innocently. "Oh, my goodness! I nearly tripped, too!"

A minute later, he spoke again.

"Now I'm going to holler," he warned her. "It won't be exactly a joyous sound, so get ready!"

"Holler away," she answered.

He shouted. It was not a joyous sound. His voice echoed along unseen passages and round unknown angles, and came back upon them from a dozen different points.

"Hello!" he shouted again.

"Anybody about?"

"Hello!" came faintly, from the distance. "Anybody about?"

He shouted a third time. Then, on the point of turning—for there was a limit to time as well as to human capacity—his hand suddenly came against a door-handle.

"What is it?" asked Beryl.

"Nothing," he answered. "Just a door."

"I expect, when you open it, a jack-in-the-box will fly out."

"Well, if it does, we'll hit it on the head and make it fly back again," he retorted, and she giggled.

She recalled having giggled just like that once at a mystery play when one of the characters had made a joke about a corpse.

"We needn't worry about our jack-in-the-box," said Leonard, a second later. "The door won't open."

"I won't pretend I'm disappointed," replied Beryl.

"Seems to have got jammed or something." He put his shoulder to it without success. Then he applied his ear.

"Do you—?" she began.

"Sh!" he interrupted, sharply.

A full minute went by. Then, abruptly, Leonard left the door, and entered the retreat.

"Nothing doing," he said, "and it's time we got back. We'll have our work cut out for us, Miss Haines, if we're going to keep the hotel rule that says visitors are expected to be punctual at meals."

"Yes, but don't go quite so fast," exclaimed Beryl, "or you'll lose me."

She laughed. "Have you forgotten so soon? Isn't that like a man? Why, your promise to tell me what interrupted your tennis this afternoon—to tell me, as we reached shore. No dinner for me until I know that!"

"It may make us late," he smiled.

"Then it'll have to make us late, Mr. Sefton. I'd sooner miss three courses . . . There's our bay.

We're swinging too much to the left."

They spoke little during the rest of the journey, and they reached their bay in less time than the outward journey had occupied them.

The little strip of yellow sand was now completely covered, and they had to make their landing stage a rock. When they had clambered upon it, a voice hailed them from above:

"Hurry up!" called the voice. "You've only got ten minutes!"

"All right, brother mine!" sang back Beryl, and then turned to Leonard with a smile. "It'll have to be only eight minutes, I'm afraid. Now, then—tell me!"

"Right," responded Leonard. "Jim—the boots of our hotel—came upon a dead man at the foot

"Yes, we are. Do you know, I've thought of poor Miss Fyne several times on this swim—poring over stuffy books in her little office, and—and with all her troubles on her."

Pretty rough luck," said Leonard.

"Yes—I've thought of her, too."

"Do you suppose we'll be late?"

"I've no notion of the time. But the tide's with us."

"Yes, but your promise is against us."

"My promise?" he queried.

"She laughed. "Have you forgotten so soon? Isn't that like a man? Why, your promise to tell me what interrupted your tennis this afternoon—to tell me, as we reached shore. No dinner for me until I know that!"

"It may make us late," he smiled.

UNWORKABLE POLICY?

ORTHODOX ECONOMISTS AND BANKERS CRITICAL

New York, Oct. 23. In the opinion of orthodox economists and bankers, President Roosevelt's monetary policy, as broadcasted, may be summed up as utopian and unworkable.

The New York Times states that the leading financiers consider the President's plan as an unprecedented thing and one completely at variance with the established monetary precepts.

Other economic experts suggest that President Roosevelt is aiming at an elastic dollar, manipulated by the Government by purchases and sales of gold at predetermined prices, to counteract fluctuations in the general price level. In other words, they believe he is planning a "commodity dollar" with a virtually stable purchasing power.

Bankers are most sceptical as to the practicability of controlling the general price level. They favour control of the foreign exchange value of the dollar but are surprised by the selection of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as agents instead of the Treasury or Federal Reserve Bank system.

According to the Washington correspondent of the New York Times, the price of gold must be fixed at about $40 an ounce if President Roosevelt aims at achieving the 1926 price levels.

Some quarters predict that the immediate effect will be an increased gold price abroad and a drop in the dollar in relation to other currencies.—Reuter.

LONDON'S REACTION.

Bankers Interested But Non-Committal.

London, Oct. 23. London bankers are following President Roosevelt's monetary plan with interest but are adopting a wait and see attitude before commenting. They observe, however, that the success of the experiment stands a fifty-fifty chance and recall Mr. Montagu Norman's recent remark that a new situation is developing in the United States every day, hence no wise man could safely predict the future.—Reuter.

OBITUARY

MILITARY HISTORIAN DIES IN CANNES

Cannes, Oct. 23. The death of Sir John William Fortescue, hero to-day robbed Britain of one of her foremost military historians. The noted writer died following an operation.

Sir John was born in the year 1869 and was the fifth son of the third Earl of Fortescue. He was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge, and upon completion of his education was appointed private secretary to the Governor of the Windward Islands, later holding a similar post in New Zealand. Concluding his services there he returned to England where he became an officer of the Yeomanry and took up the study of the exploits of the British Army.

In 1895 he published a "History of the Seventh Lancers" and later a work on "Dundonald" as well as the "Story of the Red Deer" and "The Drummer's Coat." During this time he had been gathering material for the work which was to make him famous, a detailed history of the British Army comprising some thirteen volumes. This task took him nearly thirty years to complete and the financial return was so wretched that had it not been for the patronage of King Edward it is doubtful if it ever would have been completed.

In 1905 King Edward appointed him Librarian at Windsor Castle and Deputy Keeper of the Royal Archives and later King George, upon his ascension to the throne, retained him in these two offices. He was also given lectures in Oxford, Cambridge and London Universities. When in March, 1930 the last volume, bringing the history up to 1870, was completed, no other army in the world had anything approaching so full and concise a record of its deeds.

John Fortescue was knighted (K.C.V.O.) in 1926 and in 1931 created a knightly furor by his criticism of the Earl of Ypres Book, 1914, stating that he had never encountered such a lamentable work and that the most charitable view of it was that it was written by a monomaniac. Sir John was a great admirer of Smith-Dorrien.

ignored silver, but since gold and silver are usually mixed together, the rising gold price, they believe, will aid silver.

Senator Thomas, praising President Roosevelt's statement, added that silver's turn would come and "by our own action."

Mr. Montferry, ex-President of the American Silver Producers' Association foresees an improvement in silver and even envies it as the primary money.—Reuter.

BANDIT STAND

GOVERNMENT TROOPS CONTINUE ADVANCE

Peking, Oct. 23. Advancing from three directions, the Government forces in the Luanping area are closing in on Funing, where a force of about a thousand bandits under a minor chief is preparing to make a desperate stand. Advance guards of the special police have already reached the lower slopes of a mountain east of Funing. The lower slopes have been cleared, but 100 outlaws are believed to remain entrenched on the summit and are ready to sell their lives dearly.

The Chinese press reports that the authorities are employing conciliatory methods but are showing no weakness when their offers are refused.

Under the leadership of a woman, a force of 1,000 bandits is reported to have assembled at Taesyu, 10 miles north of Huaijou, where General Fang Chen-wu recently made his headquarters. The bandits are stated to be massing for the purpose of attempting an advance south.

A detachment of special police has been sent to nip the trouble in the bud, while strict precautions are being taken in Huaijou.

Where is Fang?

The mystery of General Fang Chen-wu remains unsolved. Some reports now hint that the rebel leader was murdered by unknown assassins.

However, soldiers of his former command who arrived here yesterday declare General Fang is still alive. They maintain he did not arrive in Tientsin but cut off his beard in order to avoid detection, and is now on his way to Canton, for the purpose of resuming his political activities.

Some circles here, however, believe that General Fang is now definitely in Tientsin, where they assert he arrived secretly in disguise, after hiding for several days in a village near Tungchow. This version claims that the defeated general travelled from Tungchow to Tientsin on a slow train and thus escaped detection.

General Fang Chen-wu's ally, General Chi Hung-chang, who is anxious to visit Cuba, is reported to have already left Tientsin for an unknown destination.—Reuter.

NO INFLATION

President Roosevelt, under siege for weeks by advocates of inflation, has at last definitely declared for a sound money policy. There are the orthodox economists who would refuse to acknowledge a managed currency system as sound, but generally speaking they are to-day in the great minority; and Wall Street will welcome the announcement as at least putting off indefinitely the prospect of more alarming developments in the currency field. Mr. Roosevelt does not contemplate any interference with monetary matters at present, but when commodity prices are restored to the 1925 level, he proposes devaluation and stabilisation of the dollar. In the meantime, he hopes to secure what advantages lies in inflation from a process of credit inflation, in which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is to continue to play the leading part. Loans are to be made to the farmers in attempt to mollify them and the re-financing of farm mortgages is to be speeded up, all of the measures taking the form of credit expansion moves. That the farmers have real cause for complaint is beyond question. Farm prices have risen, but retail prices have jumped in much greater proportion and they are left relatively worse off than they were before. It is not easy to satisfy farmers at any time; when they have a real grievance, they cannot be ignored. When President Roosevelt says: If we cannot do it one way, we shall do it in another, he means that the Administration will have to find a way. In some quarters emphasis is laid on getting the $3,300,000.00 Public works programme under way. More important than the addition of millions in greenbacks to an existing stock of idle currency is the need that this programme should really get up steam. It is the step of major consequence to both storekeepers and farmers. Without denying the evident benefits of being unshackled from gold, it is possible to over emphasize the value of currency inflation. When the Southern cotton planters demanded that inflation be employed until cotton was raised to the unreasonable price of 20 cents a pound, they departed from its only justification, namely, reducing the dollar to a normal buying power. And when they urge the Government to go into the discredited business of buying up crops to be held off the market, they forget that the fundamental support for the price of cotton is in the number of cotton garments people buy. The Great Experiment has still to prove itself in supplying a large volume of new purchasing power.

CHANGES AHEAD

One of the most perplexing things about living in 1933 is that the world's leading thinkers seem quite unable to make up their minds whether we are approaching a sunset or a dawn. If you study all the books, magazine articles and interviews in which thoughtful men try to appraise the present situation, you will find two schools of thought represented. According to one school, the end of all things is at hand, and a great darkness is about to settle down over the waters. Capitalism is done for, western civilisation is about to collapse and the world is about to enter a new dark age.

BIRTH-PANGS

According to the other school, our woes are just the birth pangs of a new order of life. We are going through a great change, and paying for it in misery and confusion, but when the change is finished things will be almost infinitely better than they were before. There will be more freedom and less poverty, more peace and less war, more happiness and less desperation—uncertainty. Each group of prognosticators can assemble a multitude of facts and a string of clever arguments to prove its case. You can get damnation with your morning coffee and salvation with your after-dinner cigarette if you like, and each forecast will seem to be absolutely fool-proof.

A TURNING POINT

This, however, conflicting it may be, seems to indicate one thing indisputably; that we have reached one of history's great turning points, and that no matter what the future brings it will be something vastly different from past experiences. For better or for worse, we have come upon a time of change, and those who do not like change seem to be very much out of luck. Yet it is also quite possible that the seers are mostly wrong. The disasters they foresee may not be quite as bad as they expect; the improvements may leave us only a little bit better off than we were. The important thing is that we accept the fact that some sort of change is coming and prepare our minds for it.

BREAKING BARRIERS

When the heaving shoulders of the antarctic seas hit the bows of the Pacific Fir and the Bear of Oakland, and Little America reckons from the rim of the great ice barrier that rings the South Polar regions, the Byrd Antarctic Expedition will be staging its drama of conquest before crowded galleries—an achievement hitherto unknown.

When the long antarctic night shuts down, with the temperature sinking to 70 to 90 degrees below zero and winds of unbelievable velocity whipping blizzard banners over the stark wastes, the members of the expedition will speak in normal tones and be heard in the living rooms of Main Street. For weekly broadcasts are to be made from Little America throughout the stay of the world.

Only yesterday, when an Amundsen, Scott or Peary left his base and plunged forward in a dash toward either pole, the silence swallowed him. Friend and interested follower waited long months for the word that would proclaim the expedition safe, its goal achieved or gallant attempt recorded. To-day this suspense is removed. The voice of the adventurer reaches to the farthest corner of the earth.

SHOCKS FOR GOOD-LOOKING MEN

By PETER FORREST

THE youngest woman-for-him I know smiled at me over the rim of her cocktail glass.

"The first time I married," said she, "I was in love with a man's looks; the second time, I fell in love with a man's character. The first marriage lasted two years; the second has lasted sixteen, and I'm still telling myself I am a lucky woman."

She is.

I know that one has only to look at her—trim, lithe, lively, at 43 looking no more than 30. Her husband is one of the world's neatest men. Rodin would have liked to sculpt him. He has a face like that.

Curious, how many pretty women prefer men against whom they stand out like orchids against dark, rough oaks. Strange, the lure of the rough-hewn visage, the symmetrical countenance. Sad (for them) the slump in the matine-idol type of man.

In the present week I have had to entertain girls of dubious age on a visit to town from the country. Each time I suggested shows adorned by highly decorative leading men, and each time I was turned down.

"Let's see Cedric Hardwick," said one. "Oh, I've got a crush on Charles Laughton," confided another.

TALKIE FACTORIES PERPLEXED.

I am told that this sort of thing is causing some perplexity and trouble in the world of the talkie factories.

Women prefer Lionel Barrymore—sturdy, unhandsome, but so interesting—to his brother John, whose profile is famous; and Wallace Beery has cut out John Gilbert, although the one looks like Caliban and the other like the Fairy Prince.

Clark Gable? It is a nice point whether he is handsome. He had to play brutal crook roles in his early phase because the film manufacturers thought he looked that way.

It was only after about a million women had made it clear that they found this Dempsey-looking man more attractive than the wavy-haired and handsome hero, in a film in which both appeared, that his employers decided they had made a mistake, and had better give the great feminine public what it wanted.

One may surmise a new fashion in romantic men. But a man's looks seldom have meant as much to a woman as a woman's looks to a man.

Consider Casanova, a gentleman who had more successes with women than almost any man since Julius Caesar, whose love exploits were a standing joke among his soldiers. Casanova was an ugly man. Julius, who had the additional disadvantage of being bald, was no beauty, either.

The early photographs of Gabriele D'Annunzio, "Prince of the Snowy Mountain," show an unlovely young man, whose nose is too long and whose mouth is too loose. From that stage he developed into the Gabriele of today, who bears a singular facial resemblance to a tortoise.

Yet this quite unattractive-looking man, poor and obscure (but with what vital force!), began his devastating career as a lover by inspiring a duchess's daughter with a passion so profound that she ran away with him.

Thereafter, his list of conquests is dazzling. A princess... Eleanor Duse... Probably he cannot recall all the women who have loved him.

It is not that they idealised him through his books and were repelled when they saw him (as sometimes happens with authors and women). On the contrary,

A GRAVE ERROR.

D'Annunzio did not suffer from an inferiority complex at any time. Neither did Landru, a really frightfully-looking male, yet apparently irresistible to some women.

This should be thoroughly dug, harrowed, and fallowed—do you follow me?—and then the planting may commence. Dandelions should be planted now, especially when planted with Flame of the Forest.

Antirrhinum—antirrhinum—anthirrhinum—those things you see growing on the Castle Peak road, are very easy to grow and need very little attention. Personally we are keen on them, but our wife doesn't like them because they don't give us enough to do on Saturday afternoons.

This is the time of the year when vines should be planted. Vines are decorative, especially the flowering ones. Two of the best varieties are the Ellsworth Vines and the Port Vines. The latter variety, however, does not last long.

Carnations will grow well if they are given plenty of bone dust. The bones should be kept in a dusty place and the dust removed once a fortnight and stored.

For the kitchen garden, gherkins and pickled onions are excellent. They should be planted in rows, taking care to keep the bottoms upright and tightly corked. Introduce the sporting element to your garden for variety and interest. Select a fairly healthy-looking plant after they have started to grow, and lay the odds on it. With our plants the odds are fairly constant. Even money a pumpkin, two to one a watermelon, 15 to 1 a cucumber, and so on. Of course, it all depends on the seed.

Apart from the sporting side of gardening, consider the exercise you get. And the results!

You can sit back all covered with blisters and dirty finger nails and gaze at a riot of flowers. In Ireland, where our mother comes from, they have the riot first and the flowers after, but the keen gardener can have both at once. One thing you've got to watch in Hongkong is the insects. We were only reading in the Telegraph a few weeks ago about a lot of flowers that were infested with weevils. They had to throw them all away.

We are now going out to buy a bunch of poppies for the girl friend. Auf wiedersehen (German).

THE CAT'S WHISKERS

Our cat's had kittens. We don't mind our cat having kittens once in a while but it's getting too hot these days, what with the depression, and the price of meat and milk. We told our cat about it.

We said: Muzzy (our cat); this must stop at once. We may be fond of cats, but seven in one house is a little too much. Besides, there may be seven more by Christmas.

Muzzy said: Please don't be indignant.

We said: No offence meant. But please do try and remember that moderation in all things...

She said: There is no moderation in love. When you give you give all.

We said: This is not the proper place to discuss such matters. We merely wish to say that if it occurs again we shall turn you out on the street, never to darken our door again.

She said: Cruel and heartless though the world may be, I am ready to endure any hardship—nay, even death itself—for the sake of the one I love.

At that moment The One She Loves, or The Cause of All the Trouble, or The Disolute GINGER CAT THAT LIVES NEXT DOOR, leapt from behind a chair, through a window, breaking a whiskey decanter as it passed on its way to another appointment.

"Don't blame me, mister; I don't write all this stuff."

BOY 10 DAYS IN EMPTY HOUSE
FATHER FINED FOR NEGLECT
SON FOUND "VERY SCARED"

A 13-years-old boy, who was left alone in an empty house for ten days gave evidence at Reigate Police Court when his father was fined £15 for neglecting him in a manner likely to cause suffering and injury to his health.

The prosecution was instituted by the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The boy, Kenneth Coates, son of Thomas Coates of Oak Cottage, The Chase, Chipstead, a motor salesman, told the court that on July 30 his father and stepmother said they were going away for a holiday. He was told to sleep in the kitchen, as the other rooms were locked up.

Food was left, and he was told not to make himself ill. The food consisted of cold mutton and tinned meat, and fruit, and each day the milkman and baker called.

FOOD POISONING.

Questioned by Mr. Lovell Hewitt, for the defence, Kenneth denied that his father came back the same night and remained at home for two days. He agreed that the food left included lamb, cake, jam, eggs, honey, tea, apples, and oranges, and that he was told to get anything else he wanted at a local shop. His father told him not to eat stink in time after they were opened.

P. C. Butterfill said that he found Kenneth ill on a bed in the kitchen on August 9. The boy said he had been eating mutton which his parents had cooked before they went away. The kitchen was very dirty and the boy was scared.

Replying to Mr. Hewitt, P. C. Butterfill said that he knew the boy had been left for a week on a previous occasion.

Dr. F. Sall said that Kenneth was suffering from food poisoning and he ordered him to a hospital.

FATHER'S DEBTS.

Coates told the court that after taking his wife and daughter to Weymouth in a motor-car on July 30 for a holiday he returned the same night, and was also at home on the following night.

He was then ordered away on a tour by his employers, and having no alternative, left Kenneth with sufficient food and instructions. He returned home on August 12. He was several hundred pounds in debt, penniless, and was expecting a mortgage on the house to be foreclosed.

A similar summons against Ethel Mary Coates, the stepmother, was dismissed.

The N.S.P.C.C. were given the custody of Kenneth until a home could be found for him.

Shanghai Defeated At Soccer.

EXHIBITION MATCH.

Shanghai, Oct. 23. The Hongkong Soccer Team, which was eliminated by Shanghai in the National Sports meeting at Nanking, fully redeemed itself yesterday afternoon when, before a huge crowd of spectators, it defeated Shanghai in an exhibition match by the odd goal in three. Mr. Wu Tsin-sing, mayor of Shanghai, kicked off.

Shanghai was without the services of Chow, their star goalie, whose place was taken by Lu Chung-yan. When Hongkong was hot on the attack, Lu, in an attempt to clean, kicked the ball against Liu, the Shanghai left back. The ball rebounded into the net. Before the interval, Hongkong established a further lead.

Shanghai had more of the game in the second half; but the Hongkong defence was sound. At last, the northerners reduced the lead when Li Yee-son scored from a penalty kick.

At the end of the match, Mr. Wu Tsin-sing presented the Hongkong team with a large silver cup.

The Hongkong team may stage one or two more exhibition matches in Shanghai before their return.—With Kind Regards.

The Central British ladies' team got their goals in the first half through Miss Doris Hunt, and in the second half Miss H. Knill scored for the girls.

The C. B. A. ladies' forward line, were inclined to bunch too much, while the C. B. S. girls kept to their positions fairly well. Miss Knill lead them well, but was marked by Miss Deavin, the C. B. A. centre half.

Owing to the late start the match was played 25 minutes in the first half and 20 minutes in the second.

KID CHOCOLATE AND WATSON

CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT DOUBTFUL

THE POSITION

"In spite of all that has been said, I am not expecting Kid Chocolate to defend his world championship against Seaman Watson."

Thus Mr. John Mortimer, guide, philosopher and friend to the English title-holder, in a letter to Mr. Geoffrey Simpson, the Daily Mail boxing correspondent says.

But I can understand Mr. Mortimer's doubts in the matter. He is convinced that the brown-skinned man from Cuba does not want Watson at any price.

He went to Paris to clinch the match, guaranteed Chocolate $4,000, and got "No" for an answer.

Watson, we must remember, lost a hairline verdict to Chocolate when he made his first bid for the world title in New York.

GROTESQUE.

Bo that as it may, I know that Chocolate has signed to fight for Mr. Jeff Dickson at the Albert Hall on October 30. Perhaps he will settle the point about his title after he has seen his prospective opponent in action in the same arena.

For Chocolate will be in a ring-side seat when Watson stakes his British championship against Tommy Rogers, his challenger from Willenhall.

AUSTRALIAN CRICKET IN DANGER

Poaching By Lancashire League Warning

A prediction of trouble ahead for Australian cricket, unless conditions for Test and promising players are made more attractive, is made by A. A. Malley, the former Test player, writing in the Sydney Sun.

"The poaching of Australian cricketers by Lancashire League clubs will continue until conditions more favourable to cricketers prevail here," says Malley, who adds: "Australian cricket would get a bad jolt if, say, Bradman and O'Reilly accepted Lancashire League offers."

Malley suggests that if a Test player's allowance for the tour in England were increased from £600 to £1,000, it would not seriously affect his amateur status, "since £600 for the trip is far above the amount allowed under the amateur constitution."

EMPIRE TOURNAMENT.

While on the subject of over-seas cricketers joining the Lancashire League, Malley says there might soon be sufficient Empire cricketers in England in 1936 to play an Empire tournament without calling in outside assistance.

"The Lancashire League," he says, "is becoming so popular that it could, if it wished to alter its rules, employ many more first-class Dominion players."

The suggested Empire cricket tournament might be acceptable to most of the other countries, but Australia, he says, who expect an English team in 1936-37, "would not see much humour in losing £20,000 clear profit which we expect from the gates of an English team's visit."

LEAGUE CRICKET

I.R.C. TEAM FOR THE OPENING GAME

The following have been selected to play for the Indian R. C. 2nd XI in a League Cricket match against Club de Recreio on Saturday, October 28, at King's Park, K. Nazarín (Capt.), A. R. Abbas, M. R. Abbas, M. el Arculli, A. H. Bakar, H. T. M. Barma, A. K. Muhi, M. P. Madar, A. R. Sulfand, A. S. Sulfand and A. N. Other.

Holed-in-One Twice and Then Lost

CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF RECORD

To hole two, too shots and yet suffer defeat in a championship final was the bitter experience of Eric Fiddian, the 23-years-old Stourbridge golfer last month.

He was playing in the Irish Open Amateur Championship on the Royal County Down links, near Belfast, and the man who vanquished him—by 3 and 2—was Jack McLean, the 22-years-old Glasgow player, who has now won the Scottish and Irish Amateur Championships twice in succession.

Fiddian was as surprised as any spectator when, after McLean had played a fine shot close to the seventh hole (128yds.), he saw his own mashie niblick shot pitch about a foot short of the hole and finish up resting against the pin. He lifted the flag and the ball dropped for a hole in one.

That made him all-square with McLean, but the latter recovered quickly from the shock and finished the first round two up.

SEEMED BEWILDERED.

The situation became desperate for Fiddian when, at the 14th hole in the second round, he was 3 down with 5 to play.

It was here that he accomplished his secondfeat of jiggery by holing an iron shot over a distance of 205 yards.

Fiddian seemed bewildered, but McLean took it as a good joke and smilingly remarked, "Good shot!"

"What can you say when such a thing happens?" said Fiddian after the match. "I knew it was a good shot, but, of course, it was good luck as well."

It is a record to hole two, two shots in a championship match, but several golfers have holed two tee shots during one round. J. H. Busson, the Formby professional, recorded this feat when he was only 16, while a Canadian professional, Alex Duthrie, holed two successive holes in one stroke each on the Vancouver Club course in 1911.

Two women playing at St. Augustin's, Ramsgate, in 1925, actually halved a hole in one.

AITKENHEAD SHIELD

KOWLOON MEET HONGKONG

ON SATURDAY

RINKS & GREENS SELECTED

Arrangements are now completed for the competition for the Aitkenhead Shield which will be played off at Happy Valley on Saturday afternoon.

The draw took place yesterday afternoon at the Civil Service C.C. and results are printed below. Provided the weather is favourable, some interesting play should be seen, as some of the rinks are very evenly balanced.

Players will assemble at the Police R.C. at 2.15 p.m. and play will commence at 2.30 p.m. sharp. Players will arrange for their wickets to be on their respective rinks before play commences.

It is the intention of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association to have a group photograph taken at 2.20 p.m. for the purpose of sending it to Mr. R. C. Aitkenhead, the donor of the Shield, as a memento of the occasion, together with a description of the afternoon's game.

Following the game, a presentation of all the Association's prizes won during the season will be made by Mrs. Russell, wife of Mr. J. Russell, President of the Association at the Police R.C. at 5.30 p.m.

Entertainment during the afternoon will be in the hands of Mr. R. P. Phillips, who will be master of ceremonies for the occasion, with the aid of willing helpers from other clubs.

Players are particularly requested to be prompt.

Tea will be served at all clubs to ladies attending the game. No stoppages will be held during the game, but tea will be served to the players as usual.

The Aitkenhead Shield will be presented to the club in the highest position if the League and spoons will be presented on the afternoon of play to the winning team with the highest aggregate number of shots.

Captains of the two teams are W. L. Rapley (Kowloon) and A. W. Grimm (Hongkong).

The following is the draw:

Green Tennis Shorts Now

SKIRTS "BY REQUEST" AT TOURNAMENT

Since Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall set the fashion, women lawn tennis players have worn shorts at almost every Home tournament.

Shorts of a vivid green were seen at the Welsh covered championships at Llandudno, and no one was shocked. But shorts were not seen at the recent tournament at Sidmouth.

At the time it was wondered why. Later it was learnt that shorts were forbidden by the committee.

They said that while they did not object to shorts, they were afraid that the new dress might shock their old patrons, to whom they had sold a lot of seats. They therefore "requested" that skirts should be worn.

The request was backed by a veiled threat, because a player at Sidmouth asserted that the referee, Mr. Hammet Price, let it be known that if a woman appeared in shorts, she would not be allowed to play on the centre court even though she were a star.

RAISING GOLF STANDARD

INNOVATION BY HOME CLUB

London.

Allan Dailey, who played for Scotland in this year's professional international match and who rose to fame by his amazing victory in the Kochaupntin...

...has been appointed playing-professional to the Addington Golf Club, Croydon.

Dailey is at present attached to the Bradley Hall Club, Halifax. He will begin his new duties on November 1, in partnership with W. L. Ritchie, the Addington professional.

The appointment of this brilliant Yorkshireman, 25 years of age, is regarded as a foreshadowing of a new movement in golf.

CLUB COMPLAINT.

It has long been the complaint of members of golf clubs that their professional, if a distinguished tournament player, is frequently away playing in tournaments. On the other hand professionals have explained their eclipse by Americans by pointing out that their duties, which include club-making and teaching, permit of very little time for attention to practise play.

Both actions have justification for complaint which may be disposed of if the example of Addington is followed.

Dailey will not supersede Ritchie, for many years, but will be associate "playing professional."

It is the intention of the club authorities to give Dailey every opportunity of playing with the low handicap members. These would gain valuable experience during play with a powerful professional golfer.

SEASON'S BEST GAME

ARSENAL AND RANGERS

AT Highbury

In the best match I have seen this season Glasgow Rangers defeated the Arsenal at Highbury by three goals to one, writes F. M. Carruthers of the Daily Mail.

In these tests between the champions of the two countries Scottish football has not only been triumphant but superior. Although this was not so marked as in Glasgow a week previous owing to the improvement of the home side, it was again definite.

If the Rangers truly represent Scottish football, we must change our view of it.

Not only did they work tremendously hard, refusing to regard the match as an exhibition, but they played in more open and first-time style than the Arsenal. Indeed, the way in which they made use of the whole field by exploiting the cross-pass was the outstanding feature of the game.

ALWAYS TRYING.

The Arsenal fought just as doggedly. Even when they were two goals down they refused to give up trying to pull the match out of the fire.

There was cleverness in their attacks, but they were inclined to be cramped in the middle, and against such fine covering it was hard to break through.

The Arsenal started well, getting the first goal, Lambert picking up a down-the-middle pass by James. The centre forward obtained an even better goal, but he was given offside by the referee, who was many yards in the rear.

Rangers started scoring as the result of a brilliant shot by Marley. Fleming who had gone to centre forward in place of Smith who had hurt a leg, headed a second from a corner, and the same player put on the third with a shot which Moss should have saved.

The understanding and position play of the Scottish forwards and the way in which they put the ball back to bring the halves into the attack were splendid. For a long time in the second half the Arsenal defenders were sorely pressed.

But the match was useful from the Arsenal's standpoint in showing that they may safely play Birkett at outside right in the absence of Hulme.

I has become a custom to say that Birkett was the best of the Arsenal forwards. This cannot be over-emphasised on this occasion. He was always dangerous.

Arsenal—Moss; Male, Hapgood; Hills, Roberts, John; Birkett, Bowden, Lambert, James; Bustin, Rangers—Dawson; Gray, McDonald; McKelejohn, Simpson, Brown; Archibald, Marshall, Smith, McPhail, Fleming.

FAR EASTERN OLYMPICS

Programme For 10th Meeting

The executive committee of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation have listed the invitation event to be included in the Tenth Far Eastern Championships to be held in Manila next year.

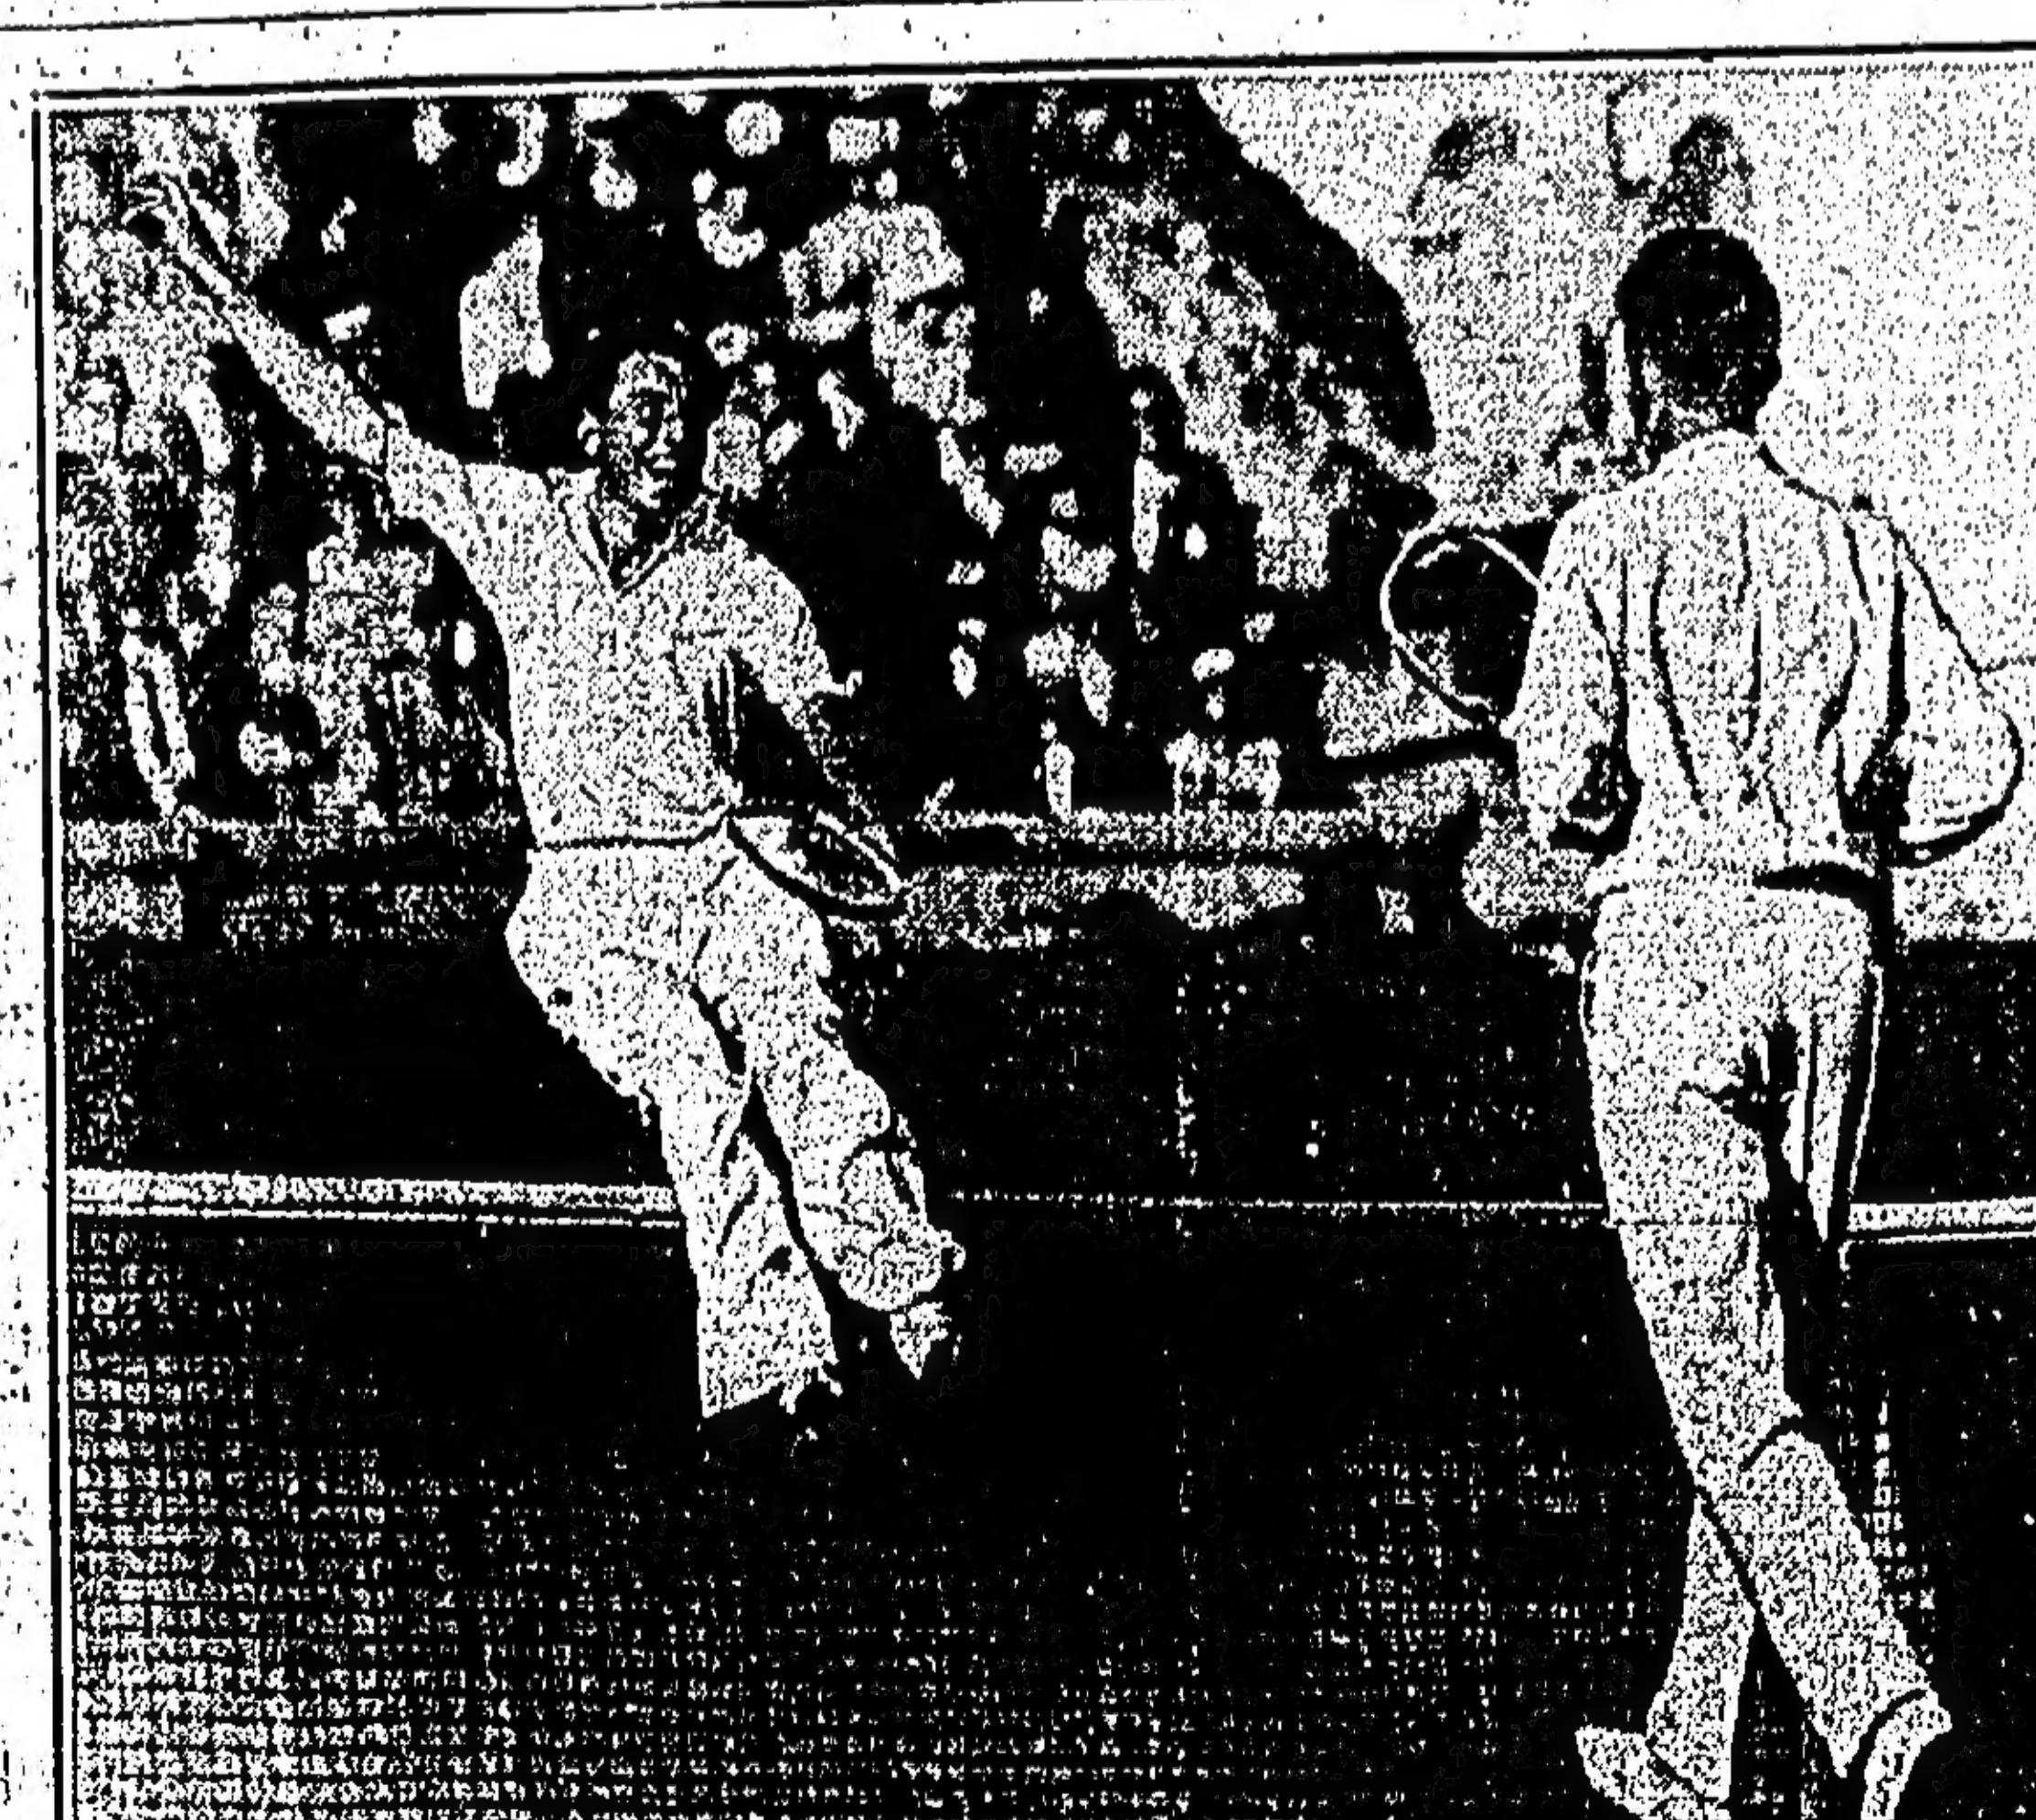

Fancy diving, women's swimming, water polo and women's volleyball are included in the programme of invitation events. In women's volleyball a provision was made which would disqualify countries other than regular members of the Far Eastern Athletic Association from participating.

INVITATION EVENTS.

The events agreed upon for the invitation women's swimming are: 200 metre relay, 50 metre free style, 100 metre back stroke and 200 metre breast stroke.

The P.A.A.F. executive committee also favoured including women's tennis in the official programme of sports for the Tenth Far Eastern Championship Games. The proposal will be submitted to both Japan and China.

The committee further decided that women's tennis be conducted on the Davis Cup System with the only exception that all matches will be decided in "two best out of three."

SHOCKS FOR GOOD-LOOKING MEN

aspire to woo and win a pretty woman—more to-day, in fact, than ever.

THESE TWO THOUSAND SINGLE MEN

By GERALD BLACK.

Two thousand bachelor apartments have lately been equipped and furnished by as many eager young Freshmen of Oxford and Cambridge.

Whatever ideas parents may hold and even impose in the matter of furnishing these rooms it will not be long before their occupants discover that the chief necessities are not, after all, the perfectly toning curtains and cushions or the elegantly framed photographs with which everyone starts undergraduate life.

These fall eventually into a gently tolerated secondary position. Nor by any means of first importance are those various articles which the local shops attempt to sell to the unwary, such as, triangular flags in college colours, or handsome crests on shields or fire screens.

These are the only three essentials—a portable gramophone, a pipe-rack, a never-failing coffee-pot; the wise Freshman always puts these first.

Later, they may be added to, in the correct style—for the mantelpiece, club dinner menus, suitably inscribed, cards of membership of societies, and fixture lists are most in vogue.

No wall decoration is quite so well regarded as a framed summons from a Proctor.

And if during the year an ear won in the bumping races can be hung above, or a college cap perched on the corner of a team photo, the ensemble thereby becomes faultlessly complete in essentials.

For the rest, the appointments may be, and generally are, nondescript. This is for several reasons. The majority of the new bachelors will not go into bare rooms. Nearly every college at either university is so full that two years out of three have to be spent by the undergraduate in lodgings in the town.

BACHELORS ALL.

At Cambridge it is the custom practically throughout for these to be the first two, after which the final year is enjoyed in college.

At Oxford the opposite plan prevails.

Both systems have their advantages and disadvantages, but from the point of view of furnishing they make little difference.

At Cambridge, the Freshman has the accumulations of his landlady to contend with, while at Oxford he has those of his predecessors, for most newcomers agree to take over the more stable furniture for which the outgoing man has ceded to have use.

So it happens that the backbone of the furnishing problem has been broken for most of these 2,000 bachelors before they and those anxious to advise them have any choice.

This is all to the good. It prevents dissipation of energy and allows for concentration on that essential domestic trinity—gramophone, pipe-rack, and coffee-pot.

CHINA TO FORTIFY SOUTHERN SHORES

NEW SUBMARINES

Canton, Oct. 23.

A comprehensive scheme for the expansion of the naval defence of southern Kwangtung has been forwarded to the South-west Political Council by the Department of the Navy here. This department strongly suggests the expenditure of $10,000,000 within the next three years and building of fortifications in Hainan Islands, Southern Kwangtung, and conversion of the coral islands in South China Sea into a naval base by the construction of fortifications and aerodromes and wireless stations there.

It is disclosed for the first time that the Navy here has ordered the construction of two submarines abroad and that these submarines are expected to arrive before the end of December.

This is the introduction of a submarine force in the South China Navy. These submarines are equipped with the most up-to-date armaments. The Government has ordered the cruiser Hai Chi, with a number of naval experts, to proceed to the South China Sea coral islands to investigate into the advisability of building a naval base to form a link with similar aerial and naval bases in Hainan.

What a Doctor Says About Neuralgia.

At this time of year, when neuralgia and similar troubles are common, the following dictum of a physician who for a number of years prior to his retirement was well-known in Shanghai and other parts of the Far East, is of special interest.

"Neuralgia", said the doctor, "like many another nervous affliction, may be guarded against by maintaining blood and nerves at the highest point of efficiency. A tonic that is not merely a temporary stimulant, but one that builds up both blood and nerves, is a far-more rational means of acquiring immunity to neuralgia, and of lessening its recurrence, than the use of analgesics or sedatives which, while effective, afford but temporary relief."

Dr. Williams Pink Hill recommends themselves as just such a tonic as the doctor specifies, designed to build up rich blood and strong nerves. They have been proven time and again helpful in minimizing the recurrence of neuralgic attacks, also as a curative remedy for rheumatic pains, sciatica, lumbar, nervous debility, as well as for anemia and other ailments due to an impoverished condition of the blood or run down nerves. Obtainable from chemists everywhere.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's classic version of "When Ladies Meet," one of Broadway's biggest hits of the current season, is showing at the Queen's Theatre.

Anne Hardling and Robert Montgomery have the co-starring roles and the other principals are Myrna Loy, Alice Brady, who makes her first talkie appearance in this picture following her recent stage triumphs in "Madame Bovary" and "Mourning Becomes Electra," memorable portrayals to "Reunion in Vienna," Martin Burton and Luis Alberni. Both Miss Hardling and Miss Loy recently acted in "The Animal Kingdom," while Montgomery's latest hit was the submarine drama, "Hell Below."

The thesis of "When Ladies Meet" is based on the conclusions of what would happen when the wife of a philandering husband meets the woman on whom this husband is now lavishing all his attentions. The plot achieves its originality on the fact that its situations are so ingeniously arranged that neither the rival women is aware of the other's identity. They are unexpectedly brought together at the home of a friend and before long take each other into mutual confidence. When each subsequently discovers who the other in the sparks begin to fly, Montgomery and Miss Hardling are up to their past high standards. Miss Loy, giving a cleverly restrained interpretation of a difficult role, but with her randy fire mischievousness nearly captures the picture from the stars.

"Sailor's Luck" Although Sam Cohen is called upon to make several comic dives into a swimming pool in Fox Film's "Sailor's Luck," the popular dialect comedian is actually one of the best exponents of this art in Hollywood.

Sammy learned to dive when he was a youngster and has kept his skill through his long career as a film comedian. While making the swimming pool scenes Sammy kept the entire company entertained during lunch hours with his one-and-a-half-and other fancy dives.

Sammy is cast in the role of a wise-cracking rob in "Sailor's Luck" which stars James Dunn and Sally Eilers, and comes on Wednesday to the King's Theatre.

Cohen, who made such a hit in "What Price Glory" several years ago, is playing a featured character in the film.

Raul Walsh, director of "What Price Glory," also handled the megaphone for "Sailor's Luck."

INTERESTING POINTS IN OPIUM CASE.

TRAFFICKING CHARGES RECALLED

Interesting points were raised when the hearing of the case against Li Tat-sang, a shop keeper, charged with possession of 6.4 lbs of raw opium at 351 Hennessy Road, and more than one ton of opium dross at No. 80 Queen's Road West, ground floor, was heard before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

The accused, it will be remembered, was charged together with a Japanese with trafficking in opium, but the charges were dropped against both men, and the two other charges of possession against the accused was proceeded with, and cross-examination of Revenue Officer Grimmitt was held over until yesterday.

Mr. D. L. Strellett, who is defending the accused, asked R. O. Grimmitt several questions on the system of sealing and its importance.

The looseness of this system, as Mr. Strellett pointed out, was that opium after being sent to the Government Analyst for examination was sealed and produced in Court, but it was not sealed in the presence of the defendant when the actual seizure was made, thus offering no protection for the defendant.

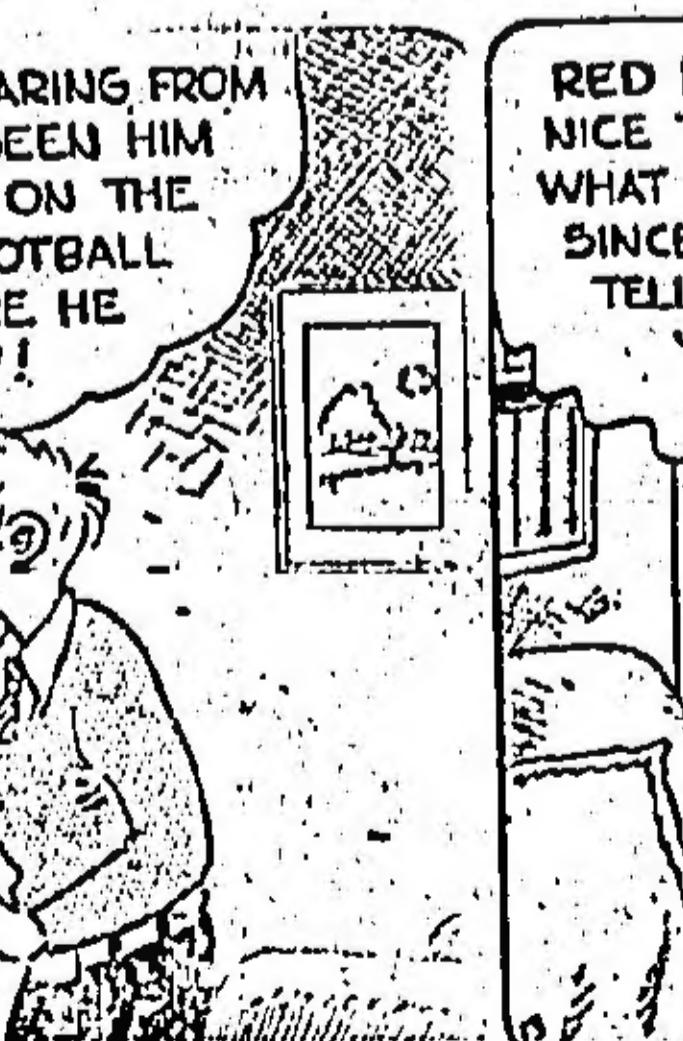

Mr. Strellett said that his questions were not to impute any dishonesty to Revenue Officers, but only to point out that if sealing was regarded of such importance it should be done really when the opium was actually seized.

R. O. Replies, Mr. Strellett, in reply to Mr. Grimmitt, contended that the important time to seal the opium was not in the presence of the defendant.

After further evidence, the hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

done, and that the sealing was not done at the wrong time. The seals were not for the protection of the analyst, but rather for the protection of the defendant. The sealing was to keep the parcel intact from the time it left the analyst's hands until its production in Court. It would be of no use to seal the opium in the presence of the defendant after the seizure, because the defendant 99 times out of a hundred admitted it was illicit opium. Sealing was a security, but was no more of a security to him than taking the opium himself.

Under cross-examination, R. O. Grimmitt also stated that any person who had Government prepared opium in his possession would be liable to arrest, until it had been proved that it was Government opium. All raids were made on information received, and they did not enter any house.

There were two kinds of opium, Kumshan opium or Government opium, and the Singapore Government Monopoly opium, which was sold at a cheaper price than Kumshan opium. People were entitled to buy the Singapore Government Monopoly opium, and even if the two were mixed, they would not be prosecuted.

R. O. Replies,

Mr. Strellett, in reply to Mr. Grimmitt, contended that the important time to seal the opium was not in the presence of the defendant.

After further evidence, the hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

A neat strip play is the clue to the solution of the contract problem printed in the last issue. Charles A. Hall, one of Cincinnati's outstanding players, made the hand in a recent tournament. He arrived at the six heart contract, with his partner, as follows:

The Bidding.

Mr. Hall in the South bid one heart, West passed and North went to three hearts. This is a forcing bid demanding that the original bidder bid either four hearts or three no trump if he holds a minimum. Any other bid would be constructive and would be treated as a mild slam try. Mr.
Hall responded with four diamonds. This was all that North needed to carry the contract to six hearts.

The Play.

West's opening lead was a club which Mr. Hall won with the king and led the ace and king of hearts.
West's queen dropped, but the good jack was still out. Mr. Hall then led a small club, won in dummy with the ace, returned the queen and discarded the eight of spades.

As the jack of hearts was located in the East hand, Mr. Hall now started to lead diamonds, not caring when East trumped, and also not fearing the location of the king of spades because if East trumped the third diamond he would be forced to lead a spade, in which case Mr. Hall would not lose a spade trick. While if East refused to trump and discarded two spades, Mr. Hall himself would

Today's Contract Problem

North plays the following hand at four hearts, doubled by West. East takes the six of spades, which South takes with the ace and returns a small club.
East takes this with the ace and returns another club hoping his partner would ruff.
Now how would you, as North, complete the play to make four hearts?

North: ♠ A 10 3 ♠ J 6 5 4
♦ A Q 6 2 ♦ J 4
♥ Q 9 7 0 4 3 ♥ None

West: ♠ K 8 5 ♠ Q 10 9 8 3 lead a trump and throw East in the lead.

If East returns a club, Mr. Hall will trump in one hand and discard the losing spade from the other.
By employing a ruff play he had made his contract of six hearts.

Bed Which Weighs Puff Of Air

REVEALS SOURCES OF UNREST

New Haven, Connecticut. A bed which can weigh a pug of air is revealing obscure sources of unrest to observers at the Yale University Institute of Human Relations.

The bed records the minute-by-minute loss in weight of persons asleep, or resting quietly while awake. This is called the "insensible loss" due most to loss of water through the breath and evaporation from the skin. Such loss is normal for all persons.

The weight of 150-pound man drops an average of about an ounce and a half an hour. But the bed reveals that this rate of loss is not steady. The fluctuations bring to light hidden emotional disturbances.

The weighing bed is set up in the laboratory of physiological psychology, which is under the direction of Dr. Walter R. Miles, professor of psychology at the Yale School of Medicine. It is a cot, suspended by a chain like a scale pan. The bed will register weight changes of one part in a million.

A TEST.

One of the sleepers was a man troubled with outbreaks of restlessness. He would grasp his head with both hands, rolling from side to side, muttering.

At the beginning of sleep his weight loss was two grams, or about one-fourteenth of a pound, every four or five minutes. But during seizures this loss mounted to two grams a minute, temporarily at the rate of a quarter pound an hour.

This loss would show a sharp decline right after seizure, as if his body had relieved itself of some strong tension. When he slept in the daytime his drop in weight was even slower than in any night period, as if he were then free from some fear that usually pestered him at night.

A possible explanation of the restless nights was found in one of his business habits. For years he had the responsibility of opening a business office early and on time. But he used no alarm clock. Instead, he relied wholly on his "unfailing ability" to awaken on time. This inner tension evidently caused many needless awakenings during the night.

The weighing method in the psychological laboratory furnished an objective analysis of this obscure human difficulty. —Reuter.

"WE NEVER WORRY"

SAYS MR. BALDWIN

Mr. Stanley Baldwin in a broad cast introduction to a series of talks on national character, said:

"No people grumble more than we do."

"I do myself every day, but though I grumble I do not worry, but keep cheerful."

It is exactly the same with all English people. As a nation we grumble, we never worry.

"The more difficult the times the more cheerful we become."

"We are always serene in times of difficulty."

AND WE CAN LAUGH.

"We can laugh at ourselves."

"Laughter is one of the best things God has given us and with hearty laughter neither malice nor indecency can exist."

"Kindness, sympathy with the underdog, love of home, are not these all the characteristics of the ordinary Englishman we all know?"

"He is a strong individualist in this, that he does not want to mould himself into any common mould to be like everyone else."

"He likes to develop his own individuality and yet he can combine for service."

CANTON CAUTIOUS?

ANTI-JAPANESE PROPAGANDA

A "CEASE FIRE" ORDER

Canton, Oct. 24. In compliance with the policies of the South-West Administration, the Canton Kuomintang Party headquarters have notified various popular bodies and patriotic societies to the following effect: "While, in face of the present national crisis, the people and the Government should make double effort in working out self-salvation, attention should be given to methods and manner in achieving our ultimate object."

"The Government considers it advisable to keep the patriotic movement conducted by various popular bodies to a more practical track with the least possible ostentation. Hereafter, all slogan and other means of propaganda which might unnecessarily incur diplomatic complications or trouble, should be abolished." —Central News Agency.

There have been rumours of info of the possibility of Japanese demonstrations in South China as a result of the continued vigour of the anti-Japanese boycott and propaganda generally.

SERIOUS CRISIS THREATENS

MOVE FARTHER RIGHT FORESHADOWED

DANGER TO FRANC

PARIS, OCT. 24. THE FALL OF THE DALADIER GOVERNMENT, WHILE NOT UNEXPECTED, IS VIEWED WITH APPREHENSION IN MANY QUARTERS.

Right up to the last moment it was hoped that the Socialists could be won over to the Budget proposals, but the Socialists declined to vote for salary cuts.

No-one doubts that the development may precipitate a serious crisis, the obvious danger to the franc being one reason and the grave international situation arising from Germany's withdrawal from the League being another.

M. Daladier's government, which kept in office for about nine months, was the third combination of the Radicals and the Socialists in the present Legislature, the other Cabinets of the same associations being those of M. Herriot and M. Paul-Boncour.

POSSIBLE NEW PREMIERS

It may be assumed that M. Daladier's downfall sounds the death-knell of the Left Cartel.

The Ministry of the next Government must stretch further to the Right, which means a still lesser disposition to make concessions to which the Government hopes to swell its income.

SOCIALISTS DONE WITH

The next government will undoubtedly turn its back on the Socialists, although it will have to retain the Radicals as its nucleus, the Radicals, led by M. Herriot, being the largest party in Parliament.

The voting against M. Daladier was 329 to 241, a margin of nearly ninety.

He is, of course, tendering his resignation immediately.

Despite the fact that the decision was reached in the early hours of the morning, the Ministers drove to the Elysee to tender their resignations.

POSSIBLE SUCCESSORS.

Possible successors to M. Daladier are

M. Albert Sarraut (Radical)

M. Chautemps (ex-Finance Minister, Radical)

M. Caillaux, the President of the Finance Commission of the Senate, and the leading political finance expert.

It is thought that foreign policy will follow very much the same lines as that of the Daladier Government.

WHAT NEXT?

A tax on salaries or pensions, or the overthrow of the Government, was the bold challenge of M. Daladier. The Government was overthrown.

The next Government will, however, come up against precisely the same problems. —Reuter.

PARIS, OCT. 24.

After a debate lasting long into the night, M. Daladier was defeated in the Chamber on a Budget division.

M. Daladier was defeated by a margin of about thirty votes.

The result was in line with expectations. The hopes of a compromise on the civil servants' salary cut gradually dimmed, although the final support for the Premier was greater than was at first anticipated.

Owing to the seriousness of the political situation, President Lebrun returned to Paris yesterday. The Chamber was crowded on the Budget debate, on which the future of the franc may depend, was resumed this morning.

The Communists attacked, moving amendments which M. Lamouroux, defending the budget, declared killed the lottery scheme by which the Government hopes to swell its income.

After passing the first article, M. Daladier requested the Chamber immediately to debate the most important proposals, such as provisions designed to prevent fraud and the taxation of civil servants. —Reuter.

TRAGIC DEATH

SUGAR DISPUTE IN HAINAN

CUSTOMS OFFICIAL ATTACKED

Nanking, Oct. 23. Representatives of Chinese sugar mills of Hainan Island in South Kwangtung are at present in Nanking seeking redress of alleged grievances against the Hainan Customs authorities.

The representatives state that the Customs' way of identifying native sugar is all wrong and should be radically changed and also demanded the dismissal of the Commissioner of Customs in Hainan Island. —Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

If you're planning to try one of the new autumn coiffures, you'll probably need a permanent wave.

These new styles of hair dress are softly waved affairs and many of them have rows and rows of little curls at the back of the neck. Naturally, rows of curls are easier to retain if you have a permanent.

Shop around a bit before you decide on the place to get your wave. There is no economy in getting a bargain-permanent. The best is none too good for your hair. Remember that the operator who does the winding is more important than the kind of wave. If the winding is done properly and your hair tested before anything is done, you won't have split ends and falling hair.

The test curl is all important. Only by making a test of one lock of hair before anything else is done, does the operator know what strength lotion to use and how much heat to apply.

If you dislike sitting under a heavy, hot machine, by all means investigate the new machine-less permanents before you make your appointment. They take much less time, aren't painful at all and there is no danger of getting burned since no heat is applied. The action takes place in the pads which are treated with various chemicals. The pads get hot the minute they are put around the hair and then start to cool in less than five minutes.

In spite of all their seemingly simple good points, have no fear that they won't keep your hair waved as long as the other kinds. They, too, are guaranteed for six months.

CHIC ON THREE COUNTS

White Plaid Organdie Adds Smart Touch

Hollywood.—It is the little things that make Hollywood costumes so interesting.

For instance, with a simple navy blue crepe dress, Gloria Stuart wears a pair of blue and white plaid organdie gauntlets, a wide bow tie of same organdie stuck through slits in the neck of her dress and a bit of the organdie making a decorative cuff around a little blue straw hat.

Dorothy Lee wore a green lace evening gown with pleats at the sides running clear up the skirt to the shoulders and green satin slippers with flesh-coloured ties to match her long suede gloves.

Betty Furness wore a white wrap-around crepe dress that fastened at the sides with bright red buttons and then had a fringed sash of red, white and blue. Her hat, too, was red, white and blue.

Dolores Del Rio wore a black and white suit, bathing suit in her own pool. The suit comprised of a kerchief top and white shorts laced up the sides with black and with black granulated stripes around the bottom.

Jean Parker wore a black satin dress with white ruching high about neck, in good, old pre-war manner, and three-quarters sleeves. Also a tiny black satin hat, looking very Parisienne.

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton

"How are the children?" inquired Mrs. Holmes. Mrs. Clark, her caller, replied that they were very well.

"How fortunate," sighed Mrs.

Holmes. "Beth has had a series of summer colds. I really don't believe she is fit to go back to school."

The conversation turned on school for few minutes, but it was more about Beth's school prospects than about Mrs. Clark's children's school prospects.

The visitor, sensing this, listened as patiently as possible to all the misfortunes of Beth during the last two years.

Clothes were the next thing. Mrs. Clark said she wanted to take in a sale of rain coats on the way home.

Centre of Conversation

Mrs. Holmes related in detail all about Beth's rain coat. Then she went over Beth's wardrobe, piece by piece—where she had seen the plaid dress and how she had copied it for half price; how it happened that her aunt had knitted her a green sweater instead of a blue; and how the dimity had faded.

Mrs. Clark was there an hour.

At that time her hostess turned every trick of conversation toward Beth. Beth sat and listened. When she had the opportunity, she would say, "Mamm, tell Mrs. Clark about the time I fell into the lake" or "Tell about the time the lady at the library said I was smart."

When Mrs. Clark left she thought several things; but it doesn't here just matter what she thought.

We are interested in Beth. She had gone down the street to her aunt's. Her aunt had callers, too.

of the gap. I stopped my game of tennis to go and have a look at him. When I got to the spot, he'd gone."

"Goodness!" gasped Beryl.

"Yes—it was pretty queer," went on Leonard, "and perhaps you can understand now why I wasn't too keen to tell you when you were in the middle of the ocean. I'm only telling you now because I believe you're the kind of person who can help—and there are so many people who only hinder."

"Thanks—awfully. But you're going to tell the others, too, aren't you?"

He looked at her reflectively before replying.

"I haven't quite decided, Miss Haines," he said, slowly. "They'll have to learn soon, of course—but just for the moment . . ."

"Well, I'll keep mum till you tell me not to," she interposed. "But—although I'm sure you're wiser than I am—I think you'll be making a mistake if you keep mum too long."

"I agree," he answered. "It will only be for a few hours, at most."

She picked up her mauve bathing-wrap, and threw it around her.

"Anyhow," she observed, as they began to ascend the private path to the hotel, "you've told me everything, and I'm sure I feel vastly better."

But Leonard Seston had not told her everything. He had not told her, for instance, that when he had been on the wreck he had heard something breathing behind the door he had been unable to open.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

SYNOPSIS.

Leonard Sefton, visiting Gravesend, discovered the disappearance of the proprietor of the Normans Hotel. The story of the missing man's daughter, Jessica Rynne, intrigues him and he decides to start this mystery. He has been so far unable to find the girl, but when he has visited the hotel, he has been spoken to a servant named Louise, who, when questioned, said that the girl had run away. The boy, however, had nothing to say, as he was a servant and had nothing to do with it. He was, however, having seen him. Later on, playing a bunch, before dinner, to a shipwrecked man on the bay, he found one of the girl's letters, which was on accompaniment of him. When on board they are disturbed by a strange cry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

"Down among the Shadows."

For a few seconds Leonard Sefton made no response. His eyes were raised, and he was staring up at the grim metal wall beneath which they hung. Miss Haines started up, also, and then slowly lowered her eyes till they rested on her companion.

"What are you going to do?" she asked, in a low voice. "You don't think it was the girl—I can see you don't."

"I'm not sure, Miss Haines," he answered, slowly. "I did think it was, at first. But—suppose it wasn't?"

"Yes! Suppose it wasn't?"

"Well, we can't quite leave it like this, can we?" he said. "So I'm going to climb on board. Do you mind hanging on to your chain for another ten minutes?"

"I won't start back without you, if that's what you mean," responded the girl. "Go ahead and act as if I wasn't here."

"Thanks," he said, although he knew that this was not possible. All the same, Miss Haines's sensible attitude relieved him somewhat, for it allowed him a little latitude. He gripped the chain firmly and gave it a sudden tug, to test it. It held. Then he began to heave himself up, while the girl, athletic herself, watched him with admiration. Three heaves, and he had raised himself to a position from which he could clutch a broken rail. The rest was easy.

Dead ships are gruesome at the best of times, and this was not the best of times. After clambering to his feet, Leonard stared about him with a strange, compelling sensation of depression. He could not recall ever having seen a more dreary, more ghostly sight. The ship, its funnels broken, its decks torn and scarred, its very angles an insult to human law and order, was naked of all that one could possibly desire. It abounded in vacant spaces, meaningless, flooring, purposeless ways, and bridges that led to nowhere. It resembled a splintered bone from which every scrap of meat had been picked and every drain of nourishing juice extracted. In one deep-hole water lay, dark and green, unnaturally still, presided over by some evil god of immobility that crushed here secretly amid the gracious movement of the sea. An iron railing, wrenched from some other part of the ship, poked impudently down a companion-way, like a sword in an ill-fitting scabbard. There were boards which no one tread, port-holes through which no one looked. Leonard Sefton had a stout heart, but he could not repress a shudder at this spectacle of desolation.

"God! It must have been a storm!" he muttered.

And yet, even while he thought of the storm and tried to visualise its nocturnal fury, an odd sense puzzled him. Did this storm that had arisen in a night explain all he saw?

But he did not waste valuable moments in fruitless conjecture. After his first brief, swift survey, he climbed towards the cabin-quarters, and listened. He listened for a sound that was like the cry of a gull. He heard no sounds however, save the lapping of the water against the ship's sides and the breaking of the waves among the shallows...

Yes, there was another sound. Soft root-tops in his rear. He turned round quickly, and found himself staring into the eyes of Beryl Haines.

"Sorry," she remarked. "Simply can't help it."

"You shouldn't have come," he reproved.

"Of course, I shouldn't," she agreed. "But don't lecture me. Aurora shouldn't have opened that little box that let out all the world's wickedness—but she did open it, so there you are. Discovered anything?"

He shook his head, and turned again towards the black aperture down which he had been peering when she had interrupted him. All was quiet below.

"Beautiful place, this," commented the girl.

"And we've got the sun on it," he answered.

"Yes. Imagine it in that storm!"

"To-night, when the sun's gone down."

"Whom, Mr. Sefton," she pleaded. "I won't dare look at this wreck from my window when I go to bed, if you think like that."

"You won't be able to see this wreck from your window when you go to bed," he responded. "There won't be any moon to see it by."

"So there won't. Good thing! Well—that's the next step?"

"I was going down, to have a look round."

"All right."

"I'm not sure that it is all right. You might follow me."

"Why shouldn't I follow you?"

"I suppose that means you're going to?"

"It does."

"Very well. But I make one stipulation, Miss Haines. From the moment we begin to descend into this nasty hole, you're under orders. Will you promise that?"

"Yes, captain. If there's any trouble, you can give me my cue, if you like."

As they descended out of the sunlight, a sudden coldness assailed them, and they became conscious of the inadequacy of their apparel for protracted investigations of this kind. Despite herself, Beryl shivered a little, and wondered at her temerity. But two can cross a bull-field where one would stay by the stile.

The silence now grew heavy and close. All they could hear were their own movements, soft and stealthy. Once Beryl thought she heard a clock ticking, but recognised the sound immediately afterwards, with a tinge of shame, as her own heart. She hoped her companion did not hear it, also.

"You shouldn't have come," he reproved.

"Of course, I shouldn't," she agreed. "But don't lecture me. Aurora shouldn't have opened that little box that let out all the world's wickedness—but she did open it, so there you are. Discovered anything?"

She obeyed, and her fingers touched his. The contact was immeasurably comforting.

"Walk carefully," he next commanded. "I nearly tripped. There's been a pretty big smash just here. I wish I had a flashlight."

"Yes, they ought to make bathing-costumes with pockets," she replied inanely. "Oh, my goodness! I nearly tripped, too!"

A minute later, he spoke again. "Now I'm going to holler," he warned her. "It won't be exactly a joyous sound, so get ready!"

"Holler away," she answered.

He shouted. It was not a joyous sound. His voice echoed along unseen passageways and round unknown angles, and came back upon them from a dozen different points.

"Hello!" he shouted again. "Hello about?"

"Hello!" came faintly from the distance. "Anybody about?"

He shouted third time. Then, on the point of turning—for there was a limit to time as well as to human capacity—his hand suddenly came against a door-handle.

"What is it?" asked Beryl.

"Nothing," he answered. "Just a door."

"I expect, when you open it, a jack-in-the-box will fly out."

"Well, if it does, we'll hit it on the head and make it fly back again," he retorted, and she giggled. She recalled having giggled just like that once at a mystery play when one of the characters had made a joke about a corpse.

"We needn't worry about our jack-in-the-box," said Leonard, a second later. "The door won't open."

"I won't pretend I'm disappointed," replied Beryl.

"Seems to have got jammed or something." He put his shoulder to it without success. Then he applied his ear.

"Do you—" she began.

"Sh!" he interrupted, sharply.

A full minute went by. Then, abruptly, Leonard left the door, and entered the retreat.

"Nothing doing," he said. "And it's time we got back. We'll have our work cut out for us, Miss Haines, if we're going to keep the hotel rule that says visitors are expected to be punctual at meals."

"Yes, but don't go quite so fast," exclaimed Beryl, "or you'll lose me."

He had taken the lead, as before, and now he slackened a little. Soon, a blessed space of light shone bluely above them. They climbed up to it, and, for an instant, Beryl almost became intoxicated.

"Oh, the sunlight—the sunlight!" she cried, and breathed deeply.

"Walk carefully," he next commanded. "I nearly tripped. There's been a pretty big smash just here. I wish I had a flashlight."

They spoke little during the rest of the journey, and they reached their bay in less time than the outward journey had occupied them. The little strip of yellow sand was now completely covered, and they had to make their landing stage a rock. When they had clambered upon it, a voice hailed them from above.

"Hurry up!" called the voice. "You've only got ten minutes!"

"All right, brother mine!" sang back Beryl, and then turned to Leonard with a smile. "It'll have to be only eight minutes, I'm afraid. Now, then—tell me!"

"Right," responded Leonard. "Right—the boots of our hotel—come upon a dead man at the foot

"Yes, we are. Do you know, I've thought of poor Miss Fyne several times on this swim—poring over stiffy books in her little office, and—ah! with all her troubles on her."

Pretty rough luck," said Leonard. "Yes—I've thought of her, too."

"Do you suppose we'll be late?"

"I've no notion of the time. But the tide's with us."

"Yes, but your promise is against us."

"My promise?"

She laughed. "Have you forgotten so soon? Isn't that like a man? Why, your promise to tell me what interrupted your tennis this afternoon—to tell me as we reached shore. No dinner for me until I know that!"

"It may make us late," he smiled.

"Then it'll have to make us late, Mr. Sefton. I'd sooner miss three courses . . . There's our bay. We're swinging too much to the left."

They spoke little during the rest of the journey, and they reached their bay in less time than the outward journey had occupied them. The little strip of yellow sand was now completely covered, and they had to make their landing stage a rock. When they had clambered upon it, a voice hailed them from above.

"Hurry up!" called the voice. "You've only got ten minutes!"

"All right, brother mine!" sang back Beryl, and then turned to Leonard with a smile. "It'll have to be only eight minutes, I'm afraid. Now, then—tell me!"

"Isn't this wonderful?" exclaimed the girl, as they drew away from the rocks and struck out for the shore.

"And aren't we lucky to be able to enjoy it?" replied Leonard.

VOTES TO GO BEFORE THE FINANCE COMMITTEE

A total of $3,840 is comprised in votes to go before the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council on Thursday next, as follows:

Estimated 1933.

Sanitary Department—31, Animal Depots and Slaughterhouses. Incl. Dental Expenses $400.

Provision made in Estimates (page 68 sub-head 31) $1,600.

Owing to increased consumption of lead seals which are used for sealing cases of lead for export, and also to increase use of ammunition for slaughter of a larger number of animals than was foreseen, the additional ammunition having to be purchased in the local market at greatly increased cost, expenditure on this sub-head up to the present has amounted to $1,399.64 out of a total vote of $1,600. A supplementary vote of $400 is requested which it is hoped will prove sufficient to cover expenditure on these services for the remainder of this year.

The above is to be met from savings under 2 Morals Touring Carr. (1933 Estimates page 68 sub-head 35).

BANDIT STAND

GOVERNMENT TROOPS CONTINUE ADVANCE

Peking, Oct. 23.—Advancing from three directions, the Government forces in the Luan-tung area are closing in on Funing, where a force of about a thousand bandits under a minor chief is preparing to make a desperate stand. Advance guards of the special police have already reached the lower slopes of a mountain east of Funing. The lower slopes have been cleared, but 100 outlaws are believed to remain entrenched on the summit and are ready to sell their lives dearly.

The Chinese press reports that the authorities are employing conciliatory methods but are showing no weakness when their offers are refused.

Under the leadership of a woman, a force of 1,000 bandits is reported to have assembled at Tasyu, 10 miles north of Kunjou, where General Fang Chen-yu recently made his headquarters. The bandits are stated to be massing for the purpose of attempting an advance south.

A detachment of special police has been sent to nip the trouble in the bud, with strict precautions being taken in Kunjou.

Where is Fang?

The mystery of General Fang Chen-yu remains unsolved. Some reports now hint that the rebel leader was murdered by unknown assassins.

However, soldiers of his former command who arrived here yesterday declare General Fang is still alive. They maintain he did not arrive in Tientsin but cut off his beard in order to avoid detection, and is now on his way to Canton, for the purpose of resuming his political activities.

Some circles here, however, believe that General Fang is now definitely in Tientsin, where they assert he arrived secretly in disguise, after hiding for several days in a village near Tungchow. This version claims that the defeated general travelled from Tungchow to Tientsin on a slow train and thus escaped detection.

General Fang Chen-yu's ally, General Chi Hung-chang, who is anxious to visit Cuba, is reported to have already left Tientsin for an unknown destination.—Reuters.

OBITUARY

MILITARY HISTORIAN DIES IN CANNES

Cannes, Oct. 23.—The death of Sir John William Fortescue, here-to-day robbed Britain of one of her foremost military historians. The noted writer died following an operation.

Sir John was born in the year 1859 and was the fifth son of the third Earl of Fortescue. He was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge, and upon completion of his education was appointed private secretary to the Governor of the Windward Islands, later holding a similar post in New Zealand. Concluding his services there he returned to England where he became an officer of the Yeomanry and took up the study of the exploits of the British Army.

In 1895 he published a "History of the Seventh Lancashire" and later a work on "Dundonald" as well as the "Story of the Red Deer," and "The Drummer's Coat." During this time he had been gathering material for the work which was to make him famous, a detailed history of the British Army comprising some thirteen volumes. This task took him nearly thirty years to complete and the financial return was so wretched that had it not been for the patronage of King Edward, it is doubtful if it ever would have been completed.

In 1905 King Edward appointed him Librarian at Windsor Castle and Deputy Keeper of the Royal Archives and later King George, upon his ascension to the throne retained him in these two offices. He was also given lectureships in Oxford, Cambridge and London Universities. When in March, 1930 the last volume, bringing the history up to 1870, was completed, no other army in the world had anything approaching so full and concise a record of its deeds.

Sir John Fortescue was knighted (K.C.V.O.) in 1928 and in 1931 created a mighty furor by his criticism of the Earl of Ypres Book, "1914," stating that he had never encountered such a lamentable work and that the most charitable view of it was that it was written by a monomaniac. Sir John was a great admirer of

The announcement that President Roosevelt is taking advantage of the presence in the United States of Sir William Beveridge to employ him as advisor on unemployment insurance suggests that Washington has been more deeply impressed by the British system than has hitherto been officially admitted. Sir William was, for many years, closely connected with the development of measures for dealing with unemployment problems in England. He was a member of the Central Body on Unemployment before the war, was the first Director of the Labour Exchanges, which perform an important function in connexion with unemployment insurance, and was Secretary in charge of the Employment Department of the Board of Trade. He is an acknowledged authority on economic and labour problems.

CHANGES AHEAD

DEATH.
LOCKHART-SMITH.—At the French Hospital, on October 24, 1933, Alice Janet, wife of W. J. Lockhart-Smith. Funeral will take place this evening at 6 p.m. at the Protestant Cemetery.

The Hongkong Telegraph.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1933.

NO INFLATION

President Roosevelt, under siege for weeks by advocates of inflation, has at last definitely declared for a sound money policy. There are the orthodox economists who would refuse to acknowledge a managed currency system as sound, but generally speaking they are to-day in the great minority; and Wall Street will welcome the announcement that the economy is about to collapse and the world is about to enter a new dark age.

A TURNING POINT

This, however, conflicting it may be, seems to indicate one thing indisputably; that we have reached one of history's great turning points, and that no matter what the future brings it will be something vastly different from past experiences. For better or for worse, we have come upon a time of change, and those who do not like change seem to be very much out of luck. Yet it is also quite possible that the seers are mostly wrong. The disasters they foresee may not be quite as bad as they expect; the improvements may leave us only a little bit better off than we were. The important thing is that we accept the fact that some sort of change is coming and prepare our minds for it.

BREAKING BARRIERS

When the heaving shoulders of the antarctic seas lift the bows of the Pacific Fir and the Bear of Oakland, and Little America oceangoing from the rim of the great ice barrier that rings the South Polar regions, the Byrd Antarctic Expedition will be staging its drama of conquest before crowded galleries—an achievement hitherto unknown.

When the long antarctic night shuts down, with the temperature sinking to 70 to 90 degrees below zero and winds of unbelievable velocity whipping blizzard banners over the stark wastes, the members of the expedition will speak in normal tones and be heard in the living rooms of Main Street. For weekly broadcasts are to be made from Little America throughout the stay of the world.

Only yesterday, when an Amundsen, Scott or Peary left his base and plunged forward in a dash toward either pole, the silence swallowed him. Friend and interested follower waited long months for the word that would proclaim the expedition safe, its goal achieved or valiant attempt recorded. To-day this suspense is removed. The voice of the adventurer reaches to the farthest corner of the earth.

SHOCKS FOR GOOD-LOOKING MEN

By PETER FORREST

THE youngest woman-for-him I know smiled at me over the rim of her cocktail glass. "The first time I married," said she, "I was in love with a man's looks; the second time, I fell in love with a man's character. The first marriage lasted two years; the second has lasted sixteen, and I'm still telling myself I am a lucky woman."

She is.

I know that one has only to look at her—trim, lithe, lively, at 43 looking no more than 30. Her husband is one of the world's nicest men. Rodin would have liked to sculpt him. He has a face like that.

Curious, how many pretty women prefer men against whom they stand out like orchids against dark, rough rocks. Strange, the lure of the rough-hewn visage, the symmetrical countenance, the sed (for them) the slump in the matinee-idol type of man.

In the present week I have had to entertain girls of debutante age on a visit to town from the country. Each time I suggested shows adorned by highly decorative leading men, and each time I was turned down.

"Let's see Cedric Hardwicke," said one. "Oh, I've got a crush on Charles Laughton," confided another.

TALKIE FACTORIES PERPLEXED.

I am told that this sort of thing is causing some perplexity and trouble in the world of the talkie factories.

Women prefer Lionel Barrymore—sturdy, unhandsome, but so interesting—to his brother John, whose profile is famous; and Wallace Beery has cut out John Gilbert, although the one looks like Caliban and the other like the Fairy Prince.

Clark Gable? It is a nice point whether he is handsome. He had to play brutal crook roles in his early phase because the film manufacturers thought he looked that way.

It was only after about a million women had made it clear that they found this Dempsey-looking man more attractive than the wavy-haired and handsome hero, in a film in which both appeared, that his employers decided they had made a mistake, and had better give the great feminine public what it wanted.

One may surmise a new fashion in romantic men. But a woman's mere looks seldom have meant as much to a woman as a woman's have to a man.

Consider Casanova, a gentleman who had more successes—with women than almost any man since Julius Caesar, whose love exploits were a standing joke among his soldiers. Casanova was an ugly man. Julius, who had the additional disadvantage of being bald, was no beauty, either.

The early photographs of Gabriele D'Annunzio, "Prince of the Snowy Mountain," show an unlovely young man, whose nose is too long and whose mouth is too loose. From that stage he developed into the Gabriele of today, who bears a singular facial resemblance to a tortoise.

Yet this quite unattractive-looking man, poor and obscure (but with what vital force!), became his devastating career as a lover by inspiring a duchess's daughter with a passion so profound that she ran away with him.

The early photographs of Gabriele D'Annunzio, "Prince of the Snowy Mountain," show an unlovely young man, whose nose is too long and whose mouth is too loose. From that stage he developed into the Gabriele of today, who bears a singular facial resemblance to a tortoise.

Recalling, then, that a Caesar can captivate a Cleopatra, a D'Annunzio fascinate a Duse, and a Rossini run off with a Harlow, and that a Duse, proffered Owen Nares, may prefer a Leslie Henson, there seems to be more hope for the plain man than he is accustomed to believe when he

The Very Idea!

HINTS ON GARDENING

By Eddie "Pansy" Kelly

EVERYBODY loves a garden. We have even heard singers thanking God for one over the radio.

With autumn in the offing, it's time all of us who live on ground floors went in for a spot of flower potting.

First of all, what you want is a good friable loam. Fried loam is the best for most plants; earth or dirt being the next choice.

This should be thoroughly dug, harrowed, and fallowed—do you follow us?—and then the planting may commence. Dandelions should be planted now, especially when planted with Flame of the Forest.

Antirrhinum—antirrhinum—those things you see growing on the Castle Peak road, are very easy to grow and need very little attention. Personally we are keen on them, but our wife doesn't like them because they don't give us enough to do on Saturday afternoons.

Our favourite flower is the self-ripening variety, which is usually done up in 2 lb. packets. Scones are delicious when made with these.

This is the time of the year when vines should be planted. Vines are decorative, especially the flowering ones. Two of the best varieties are the Elsworth Vines and the Port Vines. The latter variety, however, does not last long.

Carnations will grow well if they are given plenty of bone dust. The bones should be kept in a dusty place and the dust removed once a fortnight and stored.

For the kitchen garden, gherkins and pickled onions are excellent. They should be planted in rows, taking care to keep the bottoms upright and tightly corked.

Introduce the sporting element to your garden for variety and interest. Select a fairly healthy-looking plant after they have started to grow, and lay the odds on it. With our plants the odds are fairly constant. Even money a pumpkin, two to one a water-melon, 15 to 1 a cucumber, and so on. Of course, it all depends on the seed.

Apart from the sporting side of gardening, consider the exercise you get. And the results!

You can sit back all covered with blisters and dirty finger nails and gaze at a riot of flowers. In Ireland, where our mother comes from, they have the riot first and the flowers after, but the keen gardener can have both at once.

One thing you've got to watch in Hongkong is the insects. We were only reading in the Telegraph a few weeks ago about a lot of flowers that were infested with weevils. They had to throw them all away.

We are now going out to buy a bunch of poppies for the girl friend. Auf wiedersehen. (German)

THE CAT'S WHISKERS

Our cat's had kittens. We don't mind our cat having kittens once in a while but it's getting too hot these days, what with the depression and the price of meat and milk. We told our cat about it.

We said, "Muzzy (our cat), this must stop at once. We may be fond of cats, but seven in one house is a little too much. Besides, there may be seven more by Christmas.

Muzzy said: "Please don't be indolent."

We said: "No offence meant. But please do try and remember that moderation in all things."

She said: "There's no moderation in love. When you give you give all."

We said: "This is not the proper place to discuss such matters. We merely wish to say that if it occurs again we shall turn you out on the street, never to darken our door again."

She said: "Cruel though the world may be, I am ready to endure any hardship—even death itself—for the sake of the one I love."

At that moment The Old She Loves, or The Cause of All the Trouble, or The Dissolute, Ginger Cat That Lives Next Door, leapt from behind a chair through a window, breaking a whiskey decanter as it passed on its way to another appointment.

TWO WITNESSES COMMENDED

MAKE SMART ARREST OF BAG SNATCHER

"I would like to commend the action of the two witnesses in arresting this defendant. I think they did very well indeed to catch up to him. It would do well for many more people to follow their example."

With these remarks Mr. Schofield in the Central Magistracy this morning congratulated Mr. A.M. Omar, the I.R.C. lawn bowler, and his cousin, Mr. A.K. Omar, for their arrest of a thief in Wan-chai on Sunday night.

The defendant, Wong Hoi-tsang, an unemployed from Shangha, was charged with stealing a handbag containing $19.70 in money, a fountain pen, a gold pencil, to the total value of $64.70, the property of Miss Doris Tsang, 235, Gloucester Road, in Canal Road West.

Defendant stated the complainant dropped her bag as she alighted from the tram. He ran away and was accused of stealing.

"SLAPPED HER FACE."

Det-Sub-Inspector Nolloth said the two witnesses saw him running away with the bag. Defendant slapped Miss Tsang on the face when taking the bag. The complainant had just alighted from a tramcar when the defendant came up from behind, snatched the bag and bolted. He was chased by Mr. A.K. Omar, followed by Mr. A.M. Omar. The former caught accused but he broke loose and was eventually caught by Mr. A.M. Omar. The bag was in the defendant's possession.

The magistrate: "It is a more serious case than the ordinary one. Six months' hard labour and to be sent back to Shanghai."

S.I. Nolloth: "I would like to bring to your Worship's notice the public-spirited action of the two witnesses who caught him."

AMITY TREATY SUGGESTED

Manchoukuo Open-Door Policy a Fact

JAPAN & AMERICA

Tokyo, Oct. 19. Mr. Koki Hirota, Foreign Minister, yesterday received a personal and minute report of what happened at the World Economic Conference from Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, Japan's chief delegate. The meeting lasted more than two hours.

It was reliably learned that Viscount Ishii simultaneously conveyed the nature of conversations with President Roosevelt in connection with tangible ways to establish better relations between Japan and America. He is understood to have reported:

(1) That President Roosevelt personally agreed to the conclusion of an American-Japanese peace and amity treaty as he perceived the necessity of continued co-operation in seeking harmonious diplomatic relations between the two nations.

(2) That control of national sentiments is most essential for the smooth operation of American-Japanese relations.

(3) That the exchange of influential and frank civil representatives in order to bring out genuine beliefs and feelings in Japan and America will serve greatly to strengthen ties between the two nations.

(4) That the Tokyo Government should aid American investors in order to let them know that the "open-door" policy in Manchoukuo is a fact.

Mr. Hirota, who is believed to have similar views, will shortly meet Mr. Joseph Grew, the United States Ambassador to Tokyo, and seek to materialise these principles, it is said.

Realising the necessity of exchanging influential persons with America, the Government is reported to have selected as its emissaries Prince Fumimaro Konoe, Baron Kijuro Shidehara, former Foreign Minister, Mr. J. Sakuma, Mr. Rikitaro Fujisawa, Mr. Toyohiko Kagawa, the writer, Mr. Kenkichi Kagami, former president of the N.Y.K. Baron Seisuke Go, outstanding financial leader, Mr. S. Ikeda and Mr. Kenji Kodama, formerly president of the Bank of Japan.—United Press.

CHINA FINANCE PROBLEMS

T. V. SOONG SEEKING ECONOMIES

Shanghai, Oct. 23. Interviewed by Reuter to-day, Mr. T. V. Soong, Minister of Finance, admitted that the Ministry is negotiating for a new loan with local bankers, in view of the financial difficulties the Government is encountering, particularly due to the anti-Red campaign in Kiangsi, in which 200,000 men are participating.

Mr. Soong expressed the hope, however, that the Government will find a way to solve the present stringency, with reference to the financial situation in North China. Mr. T. V. Soong said that the Government is now exerting every effort to solve the problem. As a first step expenditure will be reduced to $4,500,000 and State revenue to be remitted to the Government as usual. At present the Government is remitting $1,000,000 to North China each month to meet the deficit as a temporary measure. Mr. Soong denied the report that the Government is appointing Generals Fang Chen-wu and Chi Hung-chung to certain posts by sending them abroad, since the Government is unable to encourage rebels.—Reuter.

Later they proceeded to Bantary and Galway.—British Wireless.

BARTER IN COTTON

SIMLA PARLEY PROPOSALS

PIECE-GOODS FOR RAW COTTON

New Delhi, Oct. 23. For the first time since the beginning of the cotton negotiations between Japan and India, a spirit of optimism has been aroused.

The more hopeful atmosphere is the consequence of long talks which resulted in the Japanese approving of the principle of a barter scheme.

The details have not yet been worked out, but the Indian Government, it is understood, has agreed to permit a specified amount of Japanese piece-goods imports against the Japanese export of a specified quantity of Indian raw cotton.

COUNTER-PROPOSALS.

India, it is proposed, proposes three hundred million yards of cloth against thirteen hundred thousand bales of cotton.

On her part, Japan suggests that India should take last year's figure of Japanese piece-good imports into India, namely, 578,000,000 yards.

As regards other industries, India has offered to place Japan on an equal footing with other countries by the adoption of a specific duty which would be increased in the case of a further depreciation of the yen.

KIANGSI DRIVE AGAINST REDS

CHIANG'S OFFER TO DESERTERS

Nanking, Oct. 23. Advices from Nanchang claim continuous progress by Government troops in the drive against Communists.

General Chiang Kai-shek in a manifesto to the Red Army guarantees safety and liberal treatment to any Communist deserters.

General Chiang suggests three ways in which any Communists can surrender to the Government troops, namely: firstly, when ordered to attack, any Communists intending to surrender may pretend to be advancing rapidly and hold up their rifles when visible from the Government lines; secondly, when ordered to withdraw, any Red soldier may pretend illness with the intention to lag behind, in order to surrender, and thirdly, when lagging behind, they should seize from vantage points to prevent the return of Communists to capture them.—Reuter.

STOCK MARKETS GOOD TONE

GOVERNMENT STOCKS HOLD FIRM

London, Oct. 23. The stock market to-day began a new account with a good tone which was maintained until the close despite uncertain international factors which held business in check.

British Government stocks were firm, with war loan 3½ per cent. at 101½. Home Rails were steady, while foreign rails improved. Kullus finished higher on the day, and international, especially nichols, closed firmer.—British Wireless.

BRITISH DEBT TO U.S.

UNREST HAMPERS DELEGATES

EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN

Washington, Oct. 18. World financial and political disorders are hampering the British negotiators in their efforts to obtain a reduction of their $4,500,000,000 war debt to the United States, according to impartial observers here.

Unrest, uncertainties and the nationalistic spirit prevailing in many parts of the world are making it difficult for the British spokesman, Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, to offer the United States any substantial "bargain" in return for debt favours, it is said. Some such inducement is regarded as essential to "sell" to the United States Congress and public the idea of giving up war debt receipts.

French, British and other Allied taxpayers were "sold" on, or persuaded to abandon German reparations largely on the theory that they would in turn be relieved of payments to the United States, but it is pointed out here that the United States taxpayer has no one to whom he can pass on the burden for costs of the war, which will fall on his shoulders if the debt receipts are sharply reduced.

ARMAMENT ISSUE.

Disarmament appeared at one time as something the Allied debtors could offer as a "bargain" to the United States for debt reduction. Prominent Americans said it would be worth while to slash the debt if Europe would turn some of its vast armament expenditures into peaceful channels, contributing to tranquillity and an atmosphere in which business would

But the dismal failure of the prolonged disarmament efforts, culminating in Germany's withdrawal from the Geneva conference has discouraged belief in informed circles here that Europe can offer anything in this line at present.

KID CHOCOLATE AND WATSON

CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT DOUBTFUL

THE POSITION

"In spite of all that has been said, I am not expecting Kid Chocolate to defend his world championship against Seaman Watson."

Thus Mr. John Mortimer, guide, philosopher and friend to the English title-holder, in a letter to Mr. Geoffrey Simpson, the Daily Mail boxing correspondent says:

But I can understand Mr. Mortimer's doubts in the matter. He is convinced that the brown-skinned man from Cuba does not want Watson at any price.

He went to Paris to clinch the match, guaranteed Chocolate £4,000, and got "No" for an answer.

Watson, we must remember, lost a hairline verdict to Chocolate when he made his first bid for the world title in New York.

GROTESQUE.

So that as it may, I know that Chocolate has signed to fight for Mr. Jeff Dickson at the Albert Hall on October 30. Perhaps he will settle the point about his title after he has seen his prospective opponent in action in the same arena.

For Chocolate will be in a ring-side seat when Watson stakes his British championship against Tommy Rogers, his challenger from Willenhall.

AUSTRALIAN CRICKET IN DANGER

Poaching By Lancashire League Warning

A prediction of trouble ahead for Australian cricket, unless conditions for Test and promising players are made more attractive, is made by A. A. Malley, the former Test player, writing in the Sydney Sun.

"The poaching of Australian cricketers by Lancashire League clubs will continue until conditions more favourable to cricketers prevail here," says Malley, who adds: "Australian cricket would get a bad jolt if, say, Bradman and O'Reilly accepted Lancashire League offers."

Malley suggests that if a Test player's allowance for the tour in England were increased from £600 to £1,000, it would not seriously affect his amateur status, "since £600 for the trip is far above the amount allowed under the amateur constitution."

EMPIRE TOURNAMENT.

While on the subject of overseas cricketers joining the Lancashire League, Malley says there might soon be sufficient Empire cricketers in England in 1936 to play an Empire tournament without calling in outside assistance.

"The Lancashire League," he says, "is becoming so popular that it could, if it wished to alter its rules, employ many more first-class Dominion players."

The suggested Empire cricket tournament might be acceptable to most of the other countries, but Australia, he says, who expect an English team in 1936-37, "would not see much humour in losing £20,000 clear profit which we expect from the gates of an English team's visit."

LEAGUE CRICKET

I.R.C. TEAM FOR THE OPENING GAME

The following have been selected to play for the Indian R. C. 2nd XI in a League Cricket match against Club de Recreio on Saturday, October 28, at King's Park.

Holed-in-One Twice and Then Lost

CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF RECORD

To hole two tee shots, and yet suffer defeat in a championship final was the bitter experience of Eric Fiddian, the 23-years-old Stourbridge golfer last month.

He was playing in the Irish Open Amateur Championship on the Royal County Down links, near Belfast, and the man who vanquished him—by 3 and 2—was Jack McLean, the 22-years-old Glasgow player, who has now won the Scottish and Irish Amateur Championships twice in succession.

Fiddian was as surprised as any spectator when, after McLean had played a fine shot close to the seventh hole (128yds.), he saw his own mashie niblick shot pitch about a foot short of the hole and finish up resting against the pin.

He lifted the flag and the ball dropped for a hole in one. That made him all-square with McLean, but the latter recovered quickly from the shock and finished the first round two up.

SEEMED BEWILDERED.

The situation became desperate for Fiddian when, at the 14th hole in the second round, he was 3 down with 5 to play.

It was here that he accomplished his second feat of juggling by holing an iron shot over a distance of 205 yards.

Fiddian seemed bewildered, but McLean took it as a good joke and smilingly remarked, "Good shot!"

"What can you say when such a thing happens?" said Fiddian after the match. "I knew it was a good shot, but, of course, it was a good luck as well."

It is a record to hole two tee shots in a championship match, but several golfers have holed two tee shots during one round.

J. H. Busson, the Formby professional, accomplished this feat when he was only 16, while a Canadian professional, Alex Duthie, holed two successive holes in one stroke each on the Vancouver Club course in 1911.

Two women playing at St. Augustine's, Ramsgate, in 1926, actually halved a hole in one.

AITKENHEAD SHIELD

KOWLOON MEET HONGKONG

ON SATURDAY

RINKS & GREENS SELECTED

Arrangements are now completed for the competition for the Aitkenhead Shield which will be played off at Happy Valley on Saturday afternoon.

The draw took place yesterday afternoon at the Civil Service C.C. and results are printed below. Provided the weather is favourable, some interesting play should be seen as some of the rinks are very evenly balanced.

Players will assemble at the Police R.C. at 2.15 p.m. and play will commence at 2.30 p.m. sharp. Players will arrange for their woods to be on their respective rinks before play commences.

It is the intention of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association to have a group photograph taken at 2.20 p.m. for the purpose of sending it to Mr. R. C. Aitkenhead, the donor of the Shield, as a memento of the occasion, together with a description of the afternoon's game.

Following the game, a presentation of all the Association's prizes won during the season will be made by Mrs. Russell, wife of Mr. J. Russell, President of the Association, at the Police R.C. at 5.30 p.m.

Entertainment during the afternoon will be in the hands of Mr. R. P. Phillips, who will be master of ceremonies for the occasion, with the aid of willing helpers from other clubs.

Players are particularly requested to be prompt.

Tea will be served at all clubs in India attending the game. No stoppages will be held during the game, but tea will be served to the players as usual.

The Aitkenhead Shield will be presented to the club in the highest position of the League and spoons will be presented on the afternoon's play to the winning team with the highest aggregate number of shots.

Captains of the two teams are F. L. Rapley (Kowloon) and A. W. Grimmett (Hongkong).

Green Tennis Shorts Now

SKIRTS "BY REQUEST" AT TOURNAMENT

Since Mrs. Farnley Whittington set the fashion, women lawn tennis players have worn shorts at almost every Home tournament.

Shorts of a vivid green were seen at the Welsh covered championships at Llandudno, and no one was shocked. But shorts were not seen at the recent tournament at Sidmouth.

At the time it was wondered why. Later it was learnt that shorts were forbidden by the committee.

They said that while they did not object to shorts they were afraid that the new dress might shock their old patrons, to whom they had sold a lot of seats. They therefore "requested" that skirts should be worn.

The request was backed by a veiled threat, because a player at Sidmouth asserted that the referee, Mr. Hamilton Price, let it be known that if a woman appeared in shorts, she would not be allowed to play on the centre court even though she were a star.

RAISING GOLF STANDARD

INNOVATION BY HOME CLUB

London.

Allan Dailey, who played for Scotland in this year's professional international match and who rose to fame by his amazing victory in the Roehampton tournament in April, has been appointed playing-professional to the Addington Golf Club, Croydon. Dailey is at present attached to the Bradley Hall Club, Halifax. He will begin his new duties on November 1, in partnership with W. L. Ritchie, the Addington professional.

The appointment of this brilliant Yorkshireman, 25 years of age, is regarded as foreshadowing a new movement in golf.

It has long been the complaint of members of golf clubs that their professional, if a distinguished tournament player, is frequently away playing in tournaments. On the other hand professionals have explained their eclipse by Americans by pointing out that their duties, which include club-making and teaching, permit of very little time for attention to practise play.

Both sections have justification for complaints which may be disposed of if the example of Addington is followed.

Dailey will not supersede Ritchie, for many years, but will be associate "playing professional."

It is the intention of the club authorities to give Dailey every opportunity of playing with the low handicap members. These would gain valuable experience during play with a powerful professional golfer.

SEASON'S BEST GAME

ARSENAL AND RANGERS

AT Highbury

In the best match I have seen this season Glasgow Rangers defeated the Arsenal at Highbury by three goals to one, writes F. M. Carruthers of the Daily Mail.

In these tests between the champions of the two countries Scottish football has not only been triumphant but superior. Although this was not so marked as in Glasgow a week previous owing to the improvement of the home side, it was again definite.

If the Rangers truly represent Scottish football, we must change our view of it.

Not only did they work tremendously hard, refusing to regard the match as an exhibition, but they played in more open and first-time style than the Arsenal. Indeed, the way in which they made use of the whole field by exploiting the cross-pass was the outstanding feature of the game.

ALWAYS TRYING.

The Arsenal fought just as doggedly. Even when they were two goals down they refused to give up trying to pull the match out of the fire.

There was cleverness in their attacks, but they were inclined to be cramped in the middle, and against such fine covering it was hard to break through.

The Arsenal started well, getting the first goal, Lambert picking up a down-the-middle pass by James. The contra forward obtained an even better goal, but he was given offside by the referee, who was many yards in the rear.

Rangers started scoring as the result of a brilliant shot by Marshall. Fleming who had gone to centre forward in place of Smith who had hurt a leg, headed a second from a corner, and the same player put on the third with a shot which Moss should have saved.

The understanding and position play of the Scottish forwards and the way in which they put the ball back to bring the halves into the attack were splendid. For a long time in the second half the Arsenal defenders were sorely pressed.

But the match was useful from the Arsenal's standpoint in showing that they may safely play Birkett at outside right in the absence of Hulme.

I has become a custom to say that Bastin was the best of the Arsenal forwards. This cannot be over-emphasised on this occasion. He was always dangerous.

Arsenal—Moss, Male, Hapgood, Hills, Roberts, John, Birkett, Bowden, Lambert, James, Bastin.

Rangers—Dawson, Gray, McDonald, Melkington, Simpson, Brown, Archibald, Marshall, Smith, McPhail, Fleming.

FAR EASTERN OLYMPICS

Programme For 10th Meeting

The executive committee of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation have listed the invitation event to be included in the Tenth Far Eastern Championships to be held in Manila next year.

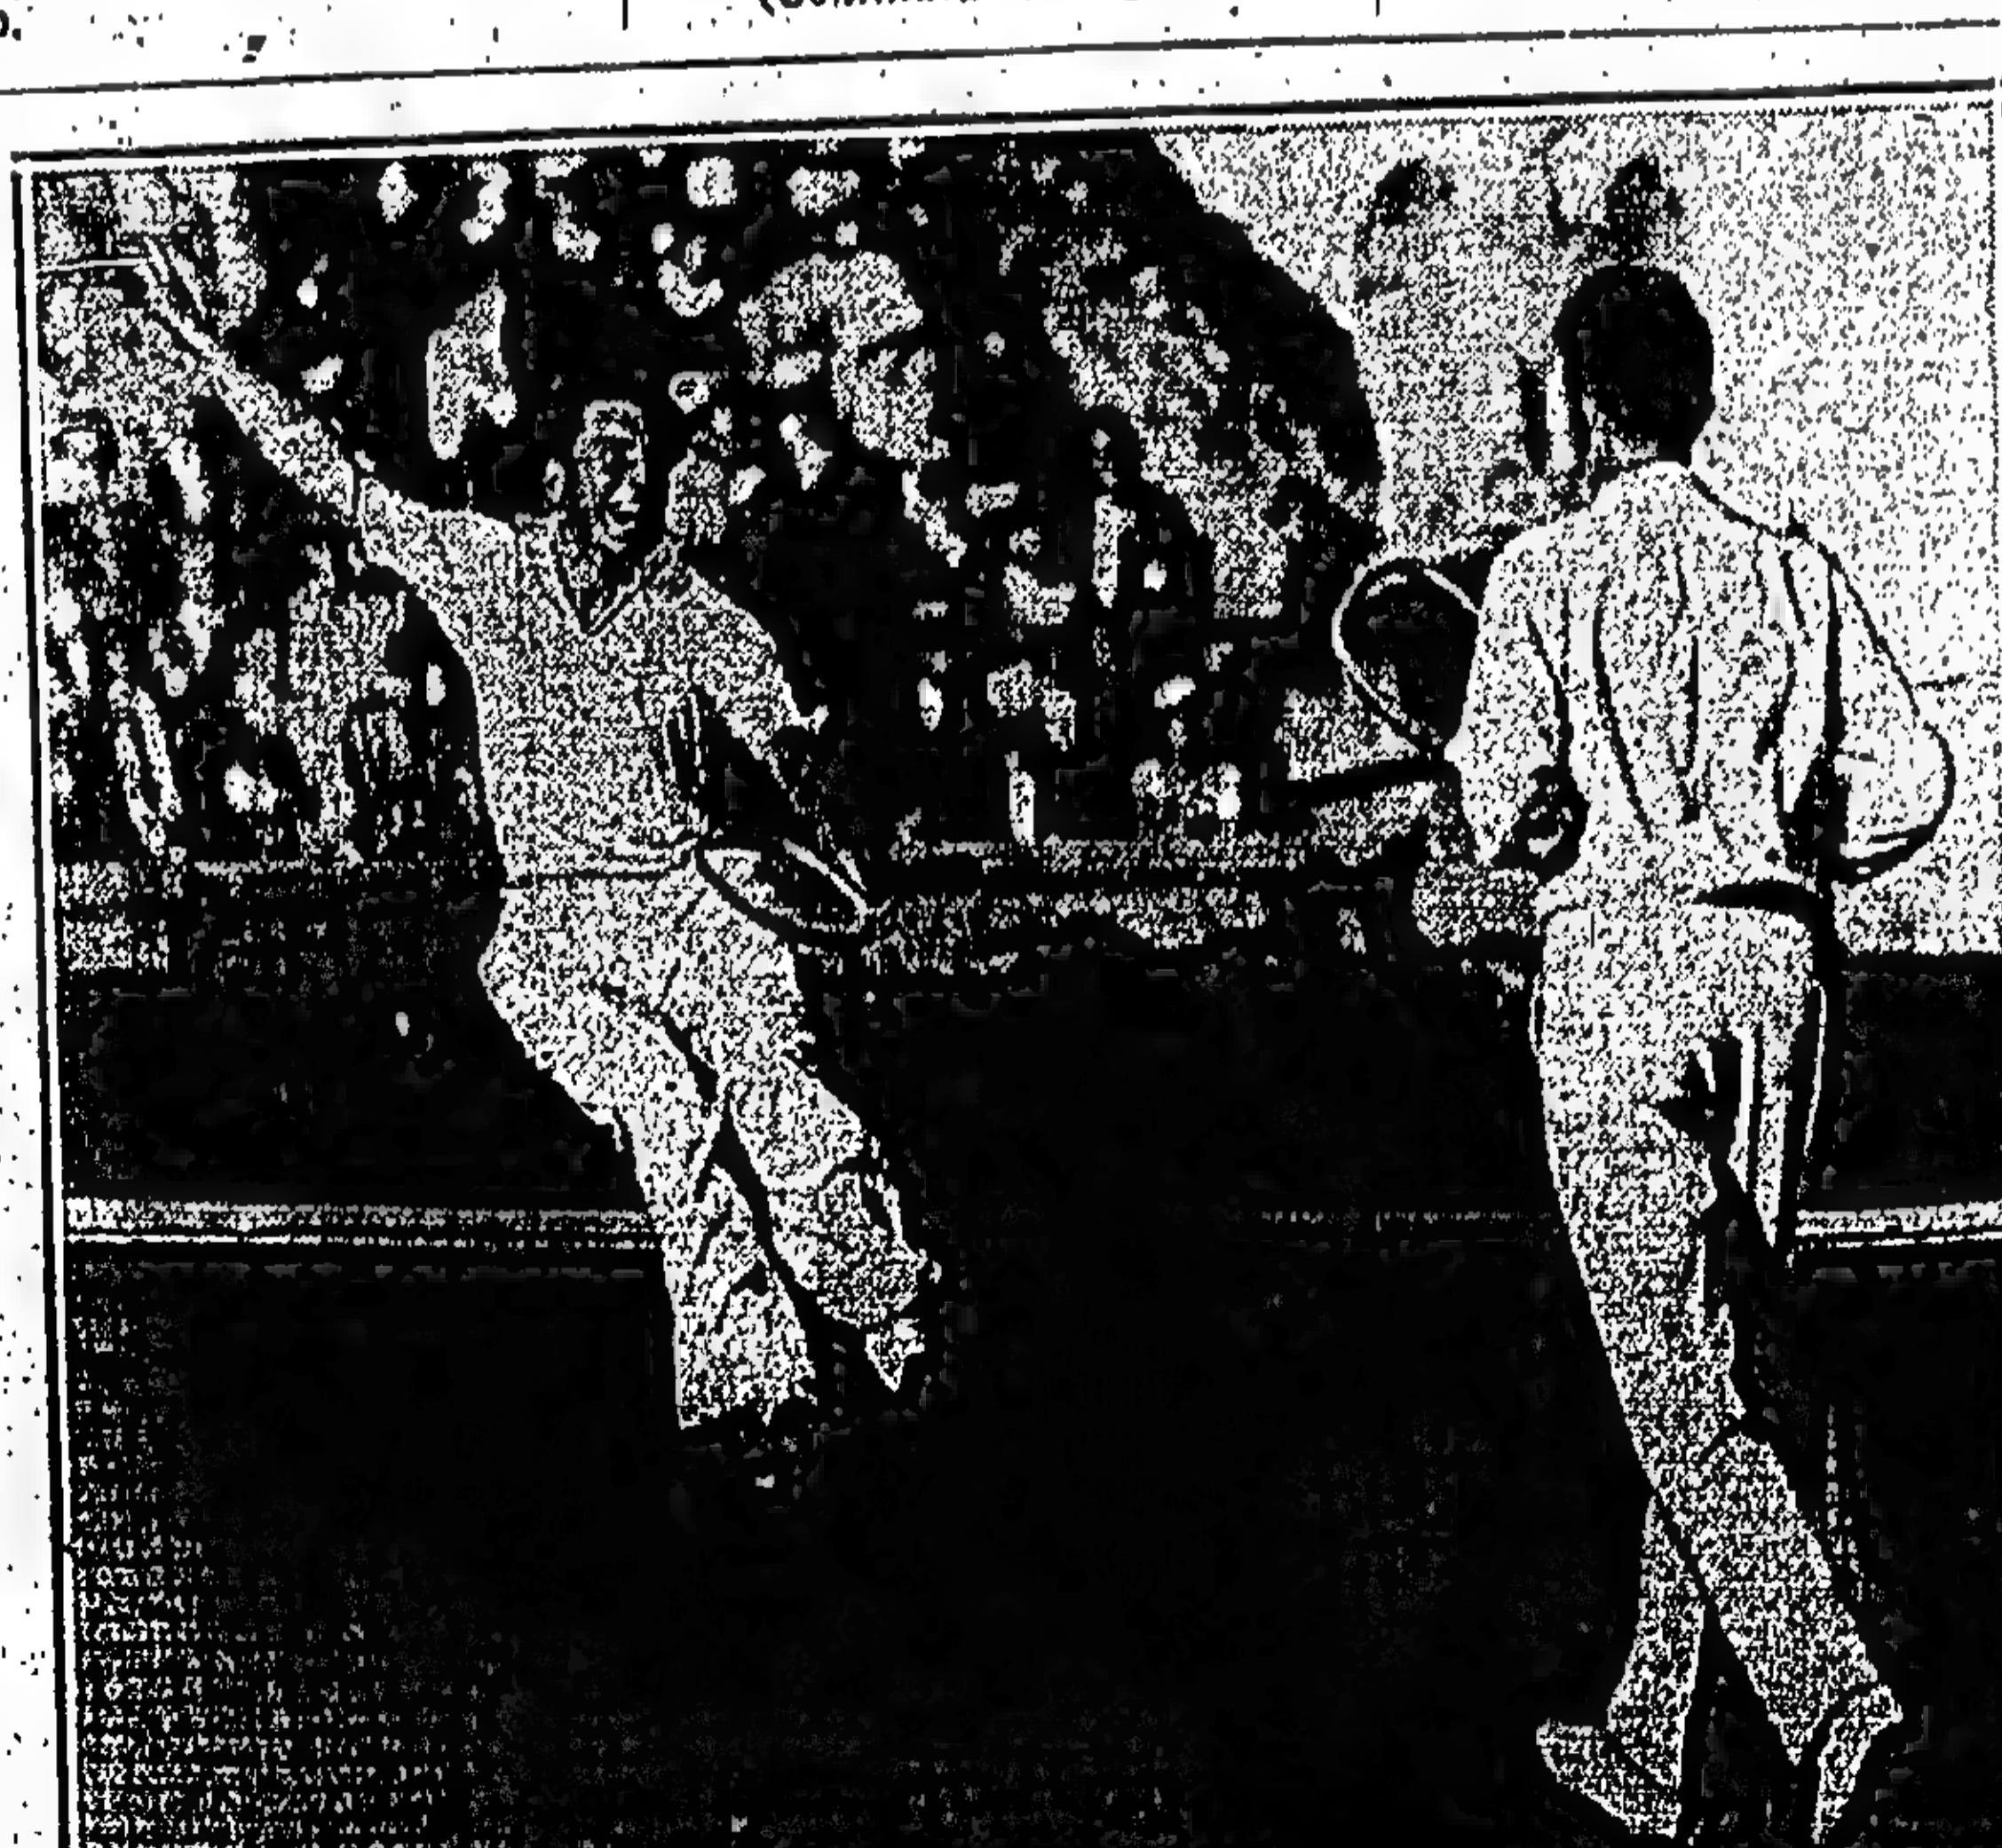

Fancy diving, women's swimming, water polo and women's volleyball are included in the programme of invitation events. In women's volleyball provision was made which would disqualify countries other than regular members of the Far Eastern Athletic Association from participating.

INVITATION EVENTS.

The events agreed upon for the invitation women's swimming are: 200 metre relay, 50 metre free style, 100 metre free style, 100 metre back stroke and 200 metre breast stroke.

The P.A.A.F. executive committee also favoured including women's tennis in the official programme of sports for the Tenth Far Eastern Championship Games. The proposal will be submitted to both Japan and China.

The committee further decided that women's tennis be conducted on the Davis Cup System with the only exception that all matches will be decided in two best out of three.

Shanghai Defeated
At Soccer

EXHIBITION MATCH.

Shanghai, Oct. 23.—The Hongkong Soccer Team, which was eliminated by Shanghai in the National Sports meeting at Nanking, fully redeemed itself yesterday afternoon when, before a huge crowd of spectators, it defeated Shanghai in an exhibition match by the odd goal in three. Mr. Wu Tch-sing, mayor of Shanghai, kicked off.

Shanghai was without the services of Chow, their star goalie, whose place was taken by Lu Chung-yen. When Hongkong was hot on the attack, Lu, in an attempt to clear, kicked the ball against Hsu, the Shanghai left back. The ball rebounded into the net. Before the interval, Hongkong established a further lead.

Shanghai had more of the game in the second half, but the Hongkong defence was sound. At last, the northerners reduced the lead when Li Yen-son scored from a penalty kick.

At the end of the match, Mr. Wu Tch-sing presented the Hongkong team with a large silver cup.

The Hongkong team may stage one or two more exhibition matches in Shanghai before their return.—With Kiu Yat Po.

WORRY"

SAYS MR. BALDWIN

Mr. Stanley Baldwin in a broadcast introduction to a series of talks on national character, said: "No people grumble more than we do."

"I do myself every day, but though I grumble I do not worry, but keep cheerful.

It is exactly the same with all English people. As a nation we grumble, we never worry.

"The more difficult the times the more cheerful we become.

"We are always serene in times of difficulty.

AND WE CAN LAUGH.

"We can laugh at ourselves.

"Laughter is one of the best things God has given us and with hearty laughter neither malice nor indecency can exist.

"Kindness, sympathy with the underdog, love of home, are not the all the characteristics of the ordinary Englishman we all know?"

"He is a strong individualist in this, that he does not want to mould himself into any common mould to be like everyone else.

"He likes to develop his own individuality and yet he can combine for service.

"Let us hold on to what we are.

Let us not try to be like everybody else.

"We can respect the fine qualities of other countries, but let us keep our own."

LADIES HOCKEY.

The Central British ladies' team got their goals in the first half through Miss Doris Hunt, and in the second half Miss H. Knill scored for the girls.

The C. B. A. ladies' forward Hunt were inclined to bunch too much, while the C. B. S. girls kept to their positions fairly well. Miss Knill lead them well, but was marked by Miss Davis, the C. B. A. centre half.

Owing to the late start the match was played 25 minutes in the first half and 20 minutes in the second.

What a Doctor Says

About Neuralgia.

"At this time of year, when neuralgia and similar troubles are common, the following dictum of a physician who for a number of years prior to his retirement was well known in Shanghai and other parts of the Far East is of special interest.

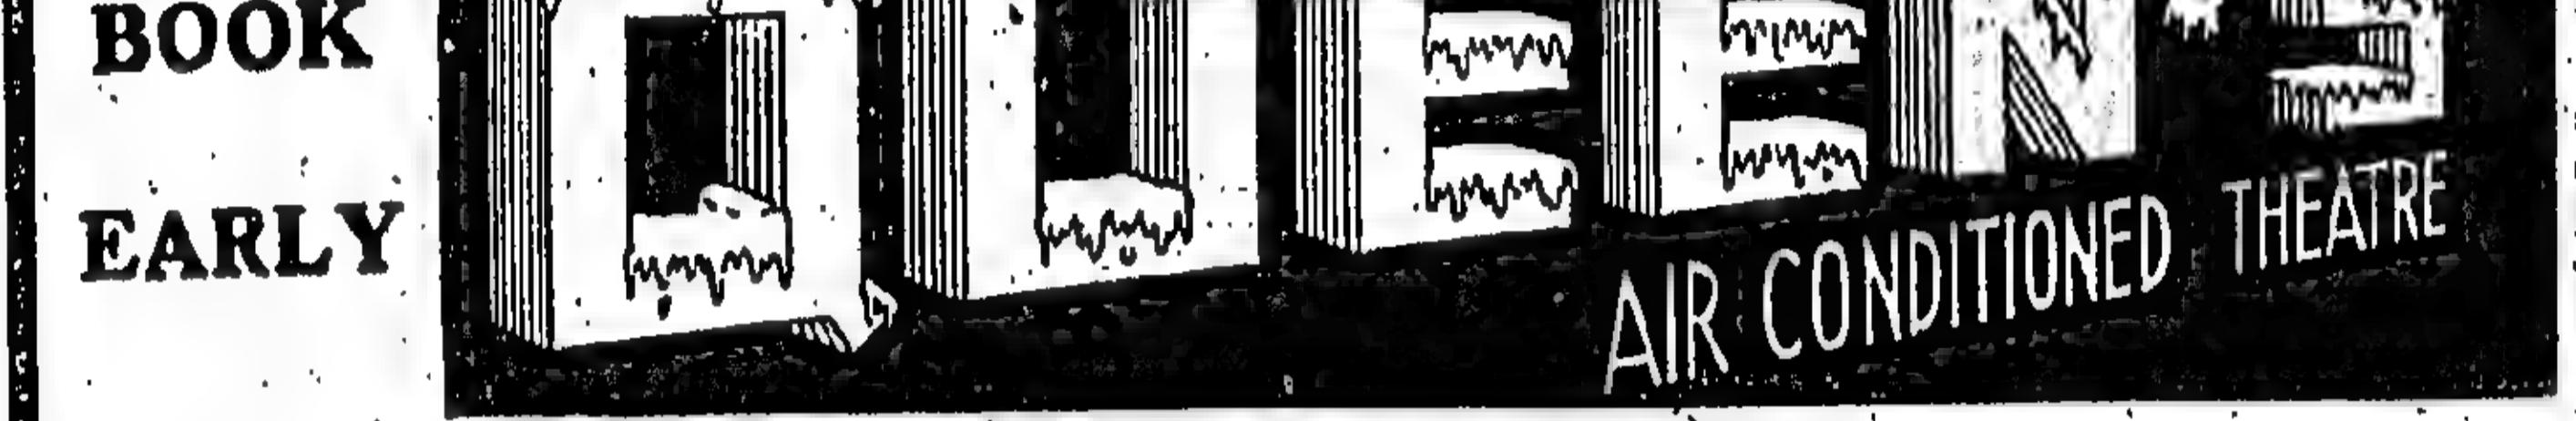

"'Neuralgia,' said the doctor, 'like many other nervous afflictions, may be guarded against by maintaining blood and nerves at the highest point of efficiency. A tonic is not merely a temporary stimulant, but one that builds up both blood and nerves, is a far more rational means of acquiring immunity to neuralgia, and of lessening its recurrence, than the use of analgesics, or sedatives which, while effective, afford but temporary relief.'

Dr. Williams Pink will recommend themselves as just such a tonic as the doctor specifies, designed to build up rich blood and strong nerves. They have been proven time and again helpful in minimizing the recurrences of neuralgia attacks, as also a curative remedy for rheumatic palms, sciatica, lumbago, nervous debility, as well as for anæmia and other ailments due to an impoverished condition of the blood or run down nerves. Obtainable from chemists everywhere."

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET FIRM

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was firm yesterday. Business done 2,210,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market:—Stocks soared from one to as much as fourteen points with Homestake, a gold stock, advancing forty points due to traders' preliminary approval of President Roosevelt's monetary policy. There are many interpretations but traders jumped to the conclusion that it meant indirect inflation especially since commodities gained and the dollar declined. Return of dollar wheat predicted. Our New York Office Cable (This morning).

Stocks: Stocks should be bought on recessions in view of President Roosevelt's promise of higher commodity prices. Wheat: The advance is well maintained. Government buying of futures continues. Mills are buying. Higher prices are forecasted. Cotton: The President's speech produced no new market factor and was evidently aimed to avert the Western farm strike and discourages advocates of fixed dollar value. Imports are coming in that there is agitation against Southern delivery and the present form of New York cotton contracts as well as rumours of an increase in processing tax on cotton and grain are reflected in the uncertainty and indecision of operators. Silver: The market was firm all day in sympathy with other markets but turned slightly easier at the close on profit-taking. Further developments will depend largely on the course of the U.S. dollar. Cable received at 11:48 p.m. during our Night Service "President Roosevelt's speech stating that commodity prices will be raised one way or another is having natural bullish effect on markets."

SHIP'S COOLIE ALLOWED $100 FINE OPTION

Charged with the theft by a coolie of $245 from the Lai Wo Cheung wine shop, 258, Hollywood Road, a ship's coolie, Fong Chuen, was sentenced to two months' hard labour by Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court last Friday morning. The money was recovered.

Mr. P. H. Sin, this morning, made application for a revision of the sentence.

"I feel sure," he said, "that if all the facts were brought before your Worship, this stiff sentence, if I may say so, would not have been passed. The accused is of excellent character and has been employed by the firm for the past ten years, and he has been entrusted with large sums of money before. The proprietor cannot understand why he should have stolen that comparatively small sum of $245. They have since recovered all the money, they have lost nothing and this accused has a wife and a family to support. The complainant firm is willing to take him back and give him his former employment."

"RATHER HONEST."

Lo Lim-pun, the proprietor of the Lai Wo Cheung wine shop, gave evidence of defendant's character, stating he was rather honest during his time with them.

Mr. Balfour said he would give the option of a fine.

Mr. Sin applied for a small fine pointing out that the sum of money involved was small.

Detective-Servant Allen: I ask for a substantial fine. The defendant is in a position of trust. We were only lucky that we got the money back.

The option of $100 fine was made.

CORRESPONDENCE

HOW HIGH CAN A HOSE STREAM?

(To the Editor,
Hongkong Telegraph.)

Sir.—A Canton English daily newspaper yesterday carried a description of a test made to a fire engine of Chinese construction, mounted on a "Mori" chassis. The stream of water from the hose reached a height of thirty feet, which was considered satisfactory, and equal, if not superior, to any fire engine now in use here. (The Canton Fire Brigade possesses several fire engines of foreign manufacture).

Personally, my garden syringe could better this achievement; but perhaps some of your readers could tell us exactly how high a modern fire engine can eject water!

FRENCH MAY JOIN IN TALKS

London, Oct. 23.

A meeting of British and Dutch rubber representatives to discuss restriction is confidently expected in the rubber market to be held in London on Thursday.

The growers' representatives are very reticent, but it is rumoured that representatives of the French growers will also attend.—Reuter.

PRIME MINISTER MAKES APPEAL TO GERMANY

URGES RETURN TO THE FOLD

STILL HOPING FOR AGREEMENT ON DISARMAMENT

NO BLUSH OR APOLOGY

NO-ONE IS ASKING GERMANY TO FORFEIT EITHER HER HONOUR OR HER SELF-RESPECT, DECLARED MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD, SPEAKING AT CRAWLEY, SUSSEX, TO-NIGHT, WHEN MAKING AN APPEAL FOR UNDERSTANDING.

He emphasised that disarmament efforts must continue. The British Government, he said, is not going to give up attempts to secure an agreed scheme for the reduction and limitation of armaments.

The Prime Minister, touching lightly on the suggestion by Baron Neurath that there had been misrepresentation of Germany's position, declared that Britain could look Germany in the face without any blush or apology.

NEIGHBOURLINESS.

The nations of the world, he went on, must develop the spirit of neighbourliness.

There could be no settlement in Europe until every nation can sit around the same table on terms of equality.

Germany, in contribution to that end, must make it possible for other nations to lie alongside her without fear roused in their hearts and without distrust reflected in their arms.

NO RUNNING AWAY.

Britain, he added, will adopt the measures she considers best fitted to get results and "certainly one of those methods is not to run away ourselves."

The Premier denied that Germany's action in leaving the rest of the world to face its difficulties alone was the way to bring peace and to give confidence to Europe.

He concluded by expressing the hope that Germany would seize the first opportunity to show that she is pursuing peace and anxious to return to cooperation with other nations that will not ask her to forfeit either her honour or her self-respect.—Reuter.

HITLER MAKES A STATEMENT

Interview With the Daily Mail

In an interview with Herr Hitler, the special correspondent of the Daily Mail in Berlin put to him various questions, notably as regards the accusations of bad faith and bellicose designs preferred against Germany. In replying, the Chancellor deplored the lack of understanding reigning at present between Great Britain and Germany and expressed his wish for the restoration of the amity which formerly existed.

Herr Hitler reiterated the assurances that no one in Germany desires war. "Nearly all the National Socialist leaders," he said, "are veterans, and none of them is willing again to witness the horrors amidst which they lived during the four years of the last war."

Continuing, Herr Hitler affirmed that the development of Nazi forces in the interior of the Reich was directed solely against internal enemies, and more especially against Communism "which is robbing such proportions of which they have no idea in Great Britain."

RELATIONS WITH FRANCE.

Turning to the question of Germany's relations with France, the Chancellor declared that his country was willing to live on good terms with its neighbour on a basis "acceptable for the country which has a self-respect."

In regard to the question of German secret armaments, Herr Hitler replied, shrugging his shoulders, that it was "childish," adding that if there really existed abroad munition factories controlled by Germany, the whole world would not fail to learn exactly of the armaments thus manufactured, because "any former soldier knows how much space munitions for a single army corps occupy. It is, therefore, incredible that these alleged munition depots of Germany in foreign countries could remain undiscovered." The Chancellor added that he was at a loss to see, if even such armaments existed, how Germany would be able to take possession of them in case of war. Closing the

MODERN ADAM &amp; EVE

NATURAL LIFE IN SOUTH SEAS

COUPLES' "GRIM FOOD"

Los Angeles, California.

A South Seas island, where a modern adam and eve pursue a primitive existence far from civilization, may be seen to visiting scientists, but to Lady Churston it is "most depressing."

Lady Denise Churston of Devon made a tour of the Southern Islands and saw Dr. Charles Ritter and his companion, Frau Koerwin, the German, pair who in 1929 exiled themselves on the isolated Isle of Charles in the Galapagos group to carry out their theories of healthful living in nature.

Lady Churston said that she and her party aboard the yacht "White Shadow" had stopped at the island last year, and seen the couple in their pursuit of the "natural life."

DRESS FOR VISITORS.

"Their shack—it is only one room, built of rough timber—is high and remote, approached only by a long climb," she said. "At the foot of the path is a sign warning visitors to ring the bell and let them know they have callers, for they go about all the time absolutely stark. In honour of visitors, they don garments—he, rough shorts and a shirt, she a loose skirt and blouse.

"The day we arrived they had just had a catastrophe. Pigs had torn down the fences of their garden and uprooted everything. It had happened before and they were sadly upset by it. Then there were the ants. They were in everything. All food had to be kept standing in solutions to keep them out. Frau Koerwin kept house and worked in the garden. They had to work terribly hard, it seemed to me. It's no life for a woman. Never seeing anyone, going to bed frightened early—oh, most depressing."

The raw food theorist and Frau Koerwin were upholding his theories. Lady Churston observed. They eat fruits and nuts, occasionally a little chicken, with all foods mashed in a pap.

RUBBER TEETH.

Dr. Ritter had pulled all his own teeth and all of hers," she said. "It was one of his theories. I gathered, that man should live to be at least 108, and that the teeth were cause of shortened lives. However, he had made sets of rubber teeth which they wore.

"Altogether, it seemed to me, a most unpleasant life. If books and what papers are left by visitors, but no music of any kind, and when we arrived to call them told us we were the first visitors in 18 months. Ships rarely stop there. Dr. Ritter collects corals and exchanges it for supplies when a ship does come."

Lady Churston and friends did not accept the Ritter hospitality to the extent of dining with them. "Oh, no," she said, shuddering. "The food looked too grim."—Reuter.

NURSEMAID TOLD TO "KEEP QUIET"

Two "very polite" burglars raided the house of Mr. L. S. Goldstone in St. Cuthbert's-road, Hampstead, N.W., when Miss Diana Rowe, a 19-years-old nursemaid, was alone in the house with Mr. Goldstone's two-years-old son.

Miss Rowe told a reporter that she was in bed when the burglars appeared.

"I had answered the telephone shortly before 10 o'clock," she said. "Scarcely had I got back into bed than two men came into the room. One was wearing a mask and flashed a torch upon me. His companion covered his face with his hands.

Col. House is known to have the confidence of many prominent Germans and it was reported that some of them had informed him in September that the Disarmament Conference would fail if the other powers did not reduce their own armaments.

Col. House is also understood to have been informed by German friends at that time that, if the United States did not sign the provisions of the Versailles treaty and of the obligations imposed therein upon Germany, the whole world would not fail to learn exactly of the armaments thus manufactured, because "any former soldier knows how much space munitions for a single army corps occupy. It is, therefore, incredible that these alleged munition depots of Germany in foreign countries could remain undiscovered." The Chancellor added that he was at a loss to see, if even such armaments existed, how Germany would be able to take possession of them in case of war. Closing the

FATHER FINED FOR NEGLECT

SON FOUND "VERY SCARED"

A 13-years-old boy, who was left alone in an empty house for ten days gave evidence at Belgrave Police Court when his father was fined $15 for neglecting him in a manner likely to cause suffering and injury to his health.

The prosecution was instituted by the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The boy, Kenneth Coates, son of Thomas Coates of Oak Cottage, The Chase, Chipstead, a motor salesman, told the court that on July 30 his father and stepmother left for a holiday. He was told to sleep in the kitchen, as the other rooms were locked up.

Food was left, and he was told not to make himself ill. The food consisted of cold mutton and tinned meat and fruit, and each day the milkman and baker called.

FOOD POISONING.

Questioned by Mr. Lovell Hewitt, for the defence, Kenneth denied that his father came back the same night and remained at home for two days. He agreed that the food left included lamb, cake, jam, eggs, honey, tea, apples, and oranges, and that he was told to get anything else he wanted at a local shop. His father told him not to eat stuff in tins after they were opened.

P. C. Butterfill said that he found Kenneth ill on a bed in the kitchen on August 9. The boy said he had been eating mutton which his parents had cooked before they went away. The kitchen was very dirty and the boy was scared.

Replying to Mr. Hewitt, P. C. Butterfill said that he knew the boy had been left for a week on a previous occasion.

Dr. F. Sall said that Kenneth was suffering from food poisoning and he ordered him to a hospital.

FATHER'S DEBTS.

Coates told the court that after taking his wife and daughter in a motor-car to Weymouth for a holiday he returned on August 30. He was several hundred pounds in debt, penniless, and was expecting a mortgage on the house to be forced.

A similar summons against Ethel Mary Coates, the stepmother, was dismissed.

The N.S.P.C.C. were given the custody of Kenneth until a home could be found for him.

SOVIET CENSUS

IN GREAT FAR-NORTH IN 1934-35

Khabarovsk.

With the ultimate object of transforming the enormous unexplored territory of Russia's "Great Far-North" into a modern socialist community, a census will be taken in 1934-35.

It will be one of the most difficult censuses ever made. The population of the Far-North is thought to be about 1,500,000.

But they belong to about 25 different nationalities, each having its own language, culture, life habits and social structure.

In spite of extensive work by Soviet explorers, the Far-North is far from being sufficiently explored and studied. In many cases the natural resources, the inhabitants' needs and their occupations still remain unknown.

In some parts, however, civilisation has made its mark. Nomadic tribes have begun to settle down; schools and hospitals are a new feature in these distant areas.

Guns of the latest make, factory-made fishing tackle, motor boats and modern farming implements are becoming regular features of local life.

The Soviet's ambition is to modernise the whole of this gigantic tract of land, thus the census will not only be demographic but also economic.—Reuter.

UNWORKABLE POLICY?

ORTHODOX ECONOMISTS AND BANKERS CRITICAL

New York, Oct. 20. In the opinion of orthodox economists and bankers, President Roosevelt's monetary policy, as broadcasted, may be summed up as utopian and unworkable.

The New York Times states that leading financiers consider the President's plan as an unprecedented thing and one completely at variance with the established monetary precepts.

Other economic experts suggest that President Roosevelt is aiming at an elastic dollar, manipulated by the Government by purchases

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's cinema version of "When Ladies Meet," one of Broadway's biggest hits of the current season, is showing at the Queen's Theatre.

Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery have the co-starring roles and the other principals are Myrna Loy, Alice Brady, who makes her first talkie appearance in this picture following her recent stage triumphs in "Mademoiselle" and "Mourning Becomes Electra," memorable portrayal of "Rougon in Vienna," Martin Burton and Luis Alberni. Both Miss Harding and Miss Loy recently scored in "The Animal Kingdom," while Montgomery's latest hit was the submarine drama, "Hell Below."

The thesis of "When Ladies Meet" is based on the conclusions of what would happen when the wife of a philandering husband meets the woman on whom this husband is now lavishing his attentions. The plot achieves its originality on the fact that its situations are ingeniously arranged that neither the rival women are aware of the other's identity. They are unexpectedly brought together at the home of a friend and before long take each other into mutual confidence. When each subsequently discovers who the other is, the sparks begin to fly.

Montgomery and Miss Harding are up to their past high standards. Miss Harding giving a cleverly restrained interpretation of a difficult role, but "...with her racy fire and vivaciousness nearly captures the admiration from the stars."

"Sailor's Luck" is called upon to make several comic dives into a swimming pool. In Fox Film's "Sailor's Luck," the popular dialect comedian is actually one of the best exponents of this art in Hollywood.

Sammy learned to dive when he was a youngster and has kept this skill through his long career as a film comedian. While making the swimming pool sequences, Sammy kept the entire company entertained during lunch hours with his one-and-a-half-hour fancy dives.

Sammy is cast in the role of a wise-cracking gob in "Sailor's Luck" which stars James Dunn and Sally Eilers and comes on Wednesday to the King's Theatre.

Cohen, who made such a hit in "What Price Glory?" several years ago, is playing a featured character role in the film.

Ronald Walsh, director of "What Price Glory?" also handled the musical score for "Sailor's Luck."

INTERESTING POINTS IN OPIUM CASE.

TRAFFICKING CHARGES RECALLED

Interesting points were raised when the hearing of the case against Li Tat-sang, a shop keeper, charged with possession of 6.4 taels of raw opium at 361 Hennessy Road, and more than one tael of opium dress at No. 30 Queen's Road West, ground floor, was heard before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

The accused, it will be remembered, was charged together with a Japanese with trafficking in opium, but the charges were dropped against both men, and the two other charges of possession against the accused was proceeded with, and cross-examination of Revenue Officer Grinnell was held over until yesterday.

Mr. D. L. Strellett, who is defending the accused, asked R. O. Grinnell several questions on the system of sealing and its importance. The looseness of this system, as Mr. Strellett pointed out, was that opium after being sent to the Government Analyst for examination was sealed and produced in Court, but it was not sealed in the presence of the defendant when the actual seizure was made, thus offering no protection for the defendant. Mr. Strellett said that his questions were not to impute any dishonesty to Revenue Officers, but only to point out that if sealing was regarded of such importance it should be done really when the opium was actually seized.

R. O. Repler, R. O. Grinnell, in reply to Mr. Strellett, contended that the important time to seal the opium was not in the presence of the dozen dant, and that the sealing was not done at the wrong time. The seals were not for the protection of the analyst, but rather for the protection of the defendant. The sealing was to keep the parcel intact from the time it left the analyst's hands until its production in Court. It would be of no use to seal the opium in the presence of the defendant after the seizure, because the defendants 99 times out of a hundred admitted it was illicit opium. Sealing was a security, but was no more of security to him than taking the opium himself.

After further evidence, the hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

Under cross-examination, R. O. Grinnell also stated that any person who had Government prepared opium in his possession would be liable to arrest, until it had been proved that it was Government opium. All raids were made on information received, and they did not enter any house.

There were two kinds of opium, Kumshan opium or Government opium, and the Singapore Government Monopoly opium, which was sold at a cheaper price than Kumshan opium. People were entitled to buy the Singapore Government Monopoly opium, and even if the two were mixed, they would not be prosecuted.

After further evidence, the hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

A neat strip play is the clue to the solution of the contract problem printed in the last issue. Charles A. Hall, one of Cincinnati's outstanding players, made the hand in a recent tournament. He arrived at the six heart contract, with his partner, as follows:

The Bidding.

Mr. Hall in the South bid one heart, West, passed, and North went to three hearts. This is a forcing bid demanding that the original bidder bid either four hearts or three no trump if he holds a minimum. Any other bid would be constructive and would be treated as a mild slam try. Mr. Hall responded with four diamonds. This was all that North needed to carry the contract to six hearts.

The Play.

West's opening lead was a club which Mr. Hall won with the king and led the ace and king of hearts. West's queen dropped, but the good jack was still out. Mr. Hall then led a small club, won in dummy with the ace, returned the queen and discarded the eight of spades.

As the jack of hearts was located in the East hand, Mr. Hall now started to lead diamonds, not caring when East trumped, and also not fearing the location of the king of spades because if East trumped the third diamond he would be forced to lead a spade, in which case Mr. Hall would not lose a spade trick. While if East refused to trump and discarded two spades, Mr. Hall himself would

Today's Contract Problem

North plays the following hand at four hearts, doubled by West. East leads the six of spades, which South takes with the ace and returns a small club. East takes this with the ace and returns another club, hoping his partner would ruff. Now how would you, as North, complete the play to make four hearts?

North: ♠ A 10 2 ♠ J 6 5 4
 ♠ A Q 6 2 ♠ J 4
 East: ♠ Q 7 6 4 3 ♠ Nono

 South: ♠ A J. ♠ A K 7

lead a trump and throw East in the lead.

If East returns a club, Mr. Hall will trump in one hand and discard the losing spade from the other. By employing a trip play he had made his contract of six hearts.

WITHOUT MUZZLES AND LICENCES

FINES IMPOSED ON DOG OWNERS

A fine of $8 was imposed on L. Jack by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for allowing his dog to be in Prince Edward Road without a muzzle on October 10.

When a folk of the Peninsula Dock Company appeared on two summonses of allowing his dog out without a muzzle and failing to take out a licence, he pleaded guilty and said he had only brought the dog into the Colony a few days ago.

The Magistrate.—What! Did you comply with the regulations?

Defendant.—I don't know what the regulations are.

The Magistrate.—The regulation against the importation of dogs into the Colony is in force at present. For allowing the dog to be out without a muzzle, I'll fine you $8.

On the second charge, I'll fine you $3.

As regards the dog, I'll make an order for it to be destroyed.

To Sergeant Dowman, who prosecuted, his Worship said, "Will you see to it at once, otherwise they will hide the dog."

W. F. Sanger, of Kowloon Tong, was fined $8 on each of two summonses for allowing his dogs in the street without muzzles.
